ALLIES TO PUNISH TURKS FOR RECENT MASSACRES

SLAUGHTER IN CILICIA THE "LAST STRAW" FOR ENTENTE

Latest Turk Atrocity Stiffens Allies to Make Terms Much Harder

Ottoman to Get But a Small Strip of Europ and to Have No Army

(A. P. Special Cable).

London, March 6.—The Daily Telegraph to-day makes a feature of a report that the allies have decided on the military and naval occupation of Constantinople in consequence of the treatment of the Armenians by the Turks.

The newspaper's version of the report represents Great Britain as determined to occupy the Turkish capital, and says she has invited France and Italy to co-operate, and that their replies are awaited.

London, March 6.—There is likelihood that the Cilician massacre may cost Turkey much of what the treaty of peace would otherwise have left her, according to expressions heard in inner circles at Whitehall, where Allied Foreign Ministers continue framing the Turkish settlement. It is believed, among other things, the proposed western boundary from Enos, on the Aegean Sea, to Midia, on the Black Sea, may be abandoned, and the line may be drawn much farther east. This would limit Turkish possessions in Europe to the narrow peninsula north of the Sea of Marmora.

France and Great Britain are credited with being in agreement in this respect, but there is less certainty expressed as to Italy's attitude, and the matter is yet to be settled definitely. Another effect of the Cilician outrage is said to be unanimous sentiment among members [illegible] Foreign Ministers' Council [illegible] totally depriving Turkey of an army, and permitting her to maintain only a force of gendarmes. This scheme, which has been discussed for some time, seemed recently to be doomed to abandonment, but it is now said to be the most probable solution of the question.

THE UNSPEAKABLE TURK!

Constantinople, March 6.—British forces in the Mesopotamian oil regions, particularly near Kerkuk and Mosul, have been engaged in constant skirmishes with tribesmen and Turkish irregulars.

The horrors of Armenian massacres and deportations during the great struggle are blandly dismissed by the Turks, with the statement that the Turkish army suffered at the hands of the Armenians and that the deportations were necessary. It is also contended that the recent massacre at Marash does not approach Greek atrocities against the Turks when the former landed at Smyrna last year under orders of the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference. Nationalist leaders also say frankly that many clashes similar to that at Marash are inevitable if the Europeans insist on partitioning portions of Turkey where the Turks predominate.

"PERTINAX" GIVES VIEWS.

Paris, March 6.—Complete agreement on features of the Turkish treaty has been reached, says "Pertinax," political editor of the Echo de Paris, who adds that the operation of the Turkish financial control commission will be quite distinct from the administration of the Ottoman debt. The Supreme Council, he says, is about to take up the establishment of a judicial commission and definitely settle zones to be accorded Greece, Italy, France and Great Britain in Asia Minor. Plans contemplated would forbid the maintenance of Allied garrisons, but Allied officers would command forces of Turkish gendarmes. These officers would be nominated by the Sultan at the suggestion of the powers.

STORM FOLLOWS FLOOD ON ATLANTIC COAST OF U. S.

Heavy Damage in Pennsylvania and Deleware—New York Again Tied Up.

(Canadian Press Wire.)

Montreal, March 6.—Over twelve inches of snow have fallen so far and there is a 27-mile-an-hour wind. The Vancouver train is ten hours late.

Philadelphia, March 6.—Freezing temperatures, which came on the heels of a raging snow, wind and rainstorm, was expected to-day to check the floods which last night broke over eastern Pennsylvania and Delaware, causing heavy damage and driving many persons from their homes.

Virtually every stream in this section of the state overflowed its banks yesterday, and ice gorges broken by the high water swept away bridges and railroad tracks. Telephone and telegraph service was put out of commission in many places an dat number of towns and cities were in darkness last night by the flooding of power plants. Scores of houses along the banks of the swollen streams washed away, and many mills and factories had to shut down because of flooded boiler rooms. Men, women and children, marooned in their homes, were rescued in boats, some of them being taken from second-storey windows.

Towns along the Schuylkill and Susquehanna Rivers appeared to be heaviest sufferers.

NEW YORK AGAIN HIT.

New York, March 6.—The storm king paid another unwelcome visit to New York to-day, just as the city was commencing to recover from the effects of the $5,000,000 blizzard of a month ago, and within twelve hours the metropolis struggled with pelting rain, a driving sleet storm, and a biting snow squall. As the temperature dropped steadily during the night, the wind increased in velocity until, during the early morning hours, it had reached an unofficial velocity of 60 miles an hour, which boded ill for shipping off the coast.

Costly oil paintings displayed in the windows of the Ehrich galleries were slightly damaged by the falling glass from broken windows. Some of the paintings were over two hundred years old and had been displayed at the Royal Academy in London. Valuable antique vases were injured by being showered with broken glass in other art shops.

With a Fractured Skull He Took French Leave From Hospital.

SOLOMON GETS OFF

Chas. Quilan Poked the Taxi Driver Instead of Paying Him.

But two cases appeared on the roster at police court this morning, and these were rapidly disposed of. The first called was that of Thomas Solomon, accused of assaulting George Casey, and doing him grievous bodily harm, on February 15th. Solomon pleaded guilty to the charge. Detective Harry Sayers stated that on the evening of the 17th Solomon came to the police station and handed in some opium and an outfit, which, he said, he had taken from Casey, after he had knocked him down and tied him to a table. The detective then went and brought Casey to the station, where it was found that he was injured. He was taken to the General Hospital, and operated on for a fractured skull, which Solomon admitted he had caused by striking Casey over the head with a wooden bowling pin. Casey, on his recovery, asked one of the doctors if he was well enough to get up, and on being answered in the affirmative, took French leave, and has not been seen since. "Under the circumstances, I think Solomon has been punished enough, having to wait all this time in jail," said Magistrate Jelfs, ordering the release of Solomon.

Charles Quilan, Jackson street west, and Marvin Lane, of the same address, were accused respectively of refusing to pay hire for a taxicab, and assault. Charles Vivian was the complainant. He stated that he had brought Quilan from the G. T. R. station to the house on Jackson street, and was told to call back later for the money. When he did so, he was thrown out of the house by Lane. The latter defendant stated that Vivian's employer had been to see him this morning, wishing the case to be dropped, so it was laid over until Monday.

NO WEDDING BELLS FOR MARY

Movie Queen Says She'll Never Marry.

Will Devote Life to Pictures.

(A. P. Special Cable).

Los Angeles, March 6.—Mary Pickford will never marry again, but will devote the remainder of her life to motion pictures, according to an interview she gave here last night to the Lost Angeles Times. This was the first statement she had made to the press since she was granted a divorce from Owen Moore, Tuesday, at Minden, Neva.

"I sought a divorce because I wanted to be free," Miss Pickford said. "Mr. Moore is a charming man and most genial—but there are many instances where even two genial persons cannot agree. I went to Minden three weeks ago with mother. I had not planned to secure a divorce that time. I was nervous and unable to work at the studio, and wanted a rest. While I was there I was informed that Mr. Moore was not far away, working on location.

"Then I determined it was the opportune time. I had no knowledge beforehand that Mr. Moore would not contest the case, so I immediately secured a lawyer and filed my complaint."

"Some people think my divorce was secured to permit me to marry again," she continued. "This is not so. Mr. Moore and I have been separated for three years and I had wanted a divorce, but it was simply to avoid such a situation as I have found myself in to-day that I put it off so long."

DEFENDANTS HAD RIGHT TO BLOCK POLICE

Chief Clark Had No Warrant to Enter Lees' Home and Lost Case.

AUTO SUIT

Sam Williams Wants $600 From Gordon Wright in Damages.

An irregularity on the court records was the cause of the criminal action against Albert and Maggie Lee, charged with obstructing a police officer in discharging his duty, to be taken out of the hands of the jury and Judge Snider dismissing the action yesterday in county court.

Norman Lee, a brother of Albert Lee, had been sentenced in police court to six months in jail for being drunk in charge of a car and the car was to be impounded. It was Lee's third offence. On the police court record it said that Lee was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, but the record did not say that the car was to be impounded. This had just been added yesterday before the trial, according to J. McKay, police court clerk.

AUTO CASES

Predominate at County Court Session.

An amicable settlement has been arrived at in the action of Sam. Williams vs. Gordon Wright, heard in County Court. Williams was suing for $600 for injuries due to his taxicab when a car driven by Wright collided with it.

The first action to be heard this morning was Della Ugo vs. R. J. Stewart, in which the plaintiff sued the defendant for $250 for injuries done to a thoroughbred Holstein cow own by the plaintiff, when an automobile driven by Stewart collided with the cow.

Ugo and two boys, Kenneth Roberts and Francis McKenna, told of the collision. The car was travelling at a fair rate of speed on the right side of the road. The cow was walking near the crown of the road, and tried to get out of the way, but did not jump quickly enough to avoid the car. The car stopped in about its own length after the collision, but neither of the occupants told their names or the number of their car.

Mr. Stewart said that his car was stopped a few feet from the cow, which had jumped across the front of the car, one of her legs striking the bumpers.

The jury was out at press time.

Annie and Thomas McCann were the plaintiffs in the action of McCann vs. Arthur Vosner. Annie claimed unstated damages for injuries she received when a car driven by Vosner collided with her, and her husband claimed unstated damages for the loss of his wife's company for the six weeks she was sick.

The case was not concluded.

Shaving sticks are reported to have also taken a 100 per cent. jump. They are now 50 cents.

John Stephen Believes Present Conditions Indicate This.

WAR MEMORIAL

Project to Perpetuate the Memory of Heroes Well Under Way.

"Will there be another Victory loan launched in the fall?" was a question asked by George C. Coppley, chairman of the Soldiers' War Memorial Fund, at the meeting in the Board of Trade chambers last evening. The question arose over the probable chances the campaign would have in the fall to raise the three-quarter of a million dollars for the purpose of erecting a suitable war memorial to the memory of those who sleep in Flanders' fields. The question was answered by Mr. John Stephen, manager of the Bank of Toronto. Mr. Stephen said:

"To speak truthfully, I do not know whether there will be another loan floated in the fall or not. But, I believe, by present indications, there will be."

The meeting of the committee last night was for the purpose of completing the organization for the contemplated drive for the necessary funds to erect the proposed memorial. Up to the present time the nature of the memorial has not taken a definite shape. That will be determined later.

The Anglicans in this district have been at a distinct disadvantage throughout their whole campaign, and were held back in many districts for weeks because of the sickness prevalent. The city churches raised $140,000 after a prolonged drive, and went over the top to the extent of $15,000, their objective having been $125,000. They have reason to be thankful for the success of their campaign, Mr. Coppley said, and will take hold of the spiritual end of it with renewed zeast.

MAY STRIKE

Local Posties Are Tired of Smooth Promises.

Local delegates to a meeting of the Torontao postmen last night reported considerable excitement, particularly as drastic action is likely to be taken as a result of what the men claim is unnecessary delay on the part of the Dominion Government to carry out its promise that arrears of pay would be sent to all the men immediately after the Parliamentary session.

These are arrears due on the increases and bonuses since last fall. The men claim the promise was made last December and they have heard nothing since and can get apparently no satisfaction. The meeting instructed the secretary to inform the Government that notice would be given for the payment and event of it not being paid, the men would walk out.

YOUTHFUL IN BODY AND MIND

Never mind your age—as measured by years. How do you feel? That's the thing that counts!

See a sprightly old gentleman coming toward you down the street. His birth record would show you that he is past seventy. But judging from the easy grace with which he swings along, his erect carriage, his ruddy complexion, the keen glance of his eye, his whole appearance the very picture of health, you would say that he is not a day past fifty. He is young in spite of his three score years and ten.

More frequently you see the opposite of his type. Men scarcely in their thirties—haggard, listless, weak, nervous—men who take no interest in life, just dragging out a weary existence, all in, tired and worn out. Though young in years, they are, nevertheless, old men. Their vital forces are on the wane. They've lost their "punch" and "pep." They feel old—and they look it!

Stay young by keeping your blood fit. Keep your nerves, stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys and bladder healthy and active. Build up your strength and health. Nothing will accomplish these results better than would think there had never been class legislation in the past. The Family Compact was a class, so was the House of Lords.

CROSS-BENCHERS DEMAND AN EARLY ELECTION

WARNIG ABOUT EXCHANGE.

The speaker desired to give warning to the Government on the exchange situation, and recalled that he had warned them that the appointment of a Board of Commerce would stir up a hornets' nest. He disagreed with the suggestion on this subject of Mr. D. D. McKenzie which, if carried out, would rob the country of a million dollars' worth of trade. He was not sure that the exchange at all with the so-called adverse condition of the balance of trade. Before the war England had an adverse trade, and yet the English sovereign "spoke all languages," and so it would be again.

"The exchange situation in money is the result of lowered credit in Canada as compared with the United States at the moment. I go a little farther and say that lowering of credit has been the direct and immediate result of faculty action on the part of our financial powers," continued Dr. Clark, and he launched into a criticism of the Finance Department, although he made it clear that he absolved the new Minister, Sir Henry Drayton, from any condemnation. It has been years behind the United States in imposing an income tax. During the years the Government had to spend lavishly on war expenditure the money had to be borrowed, which assisted the industries in the United States.

"By pursuing this course they have been largely instrumental in producing the exchange situation which we have to-day. Inflated currency, borrowing, squandering, are not new things in the world, and they were ever products of Governments when bringing financial ruin to the country, or close to it," said Dr. Clark.

AFTER FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

"The supreme condemnation of the Finance Department is to be found in the success of the Victory Loan this year," he proceeded. "We were told by that department for years that you could not raise a Victory Loan if you taxed it." These gentlemen in the department had to go back on that opinion. The Victory Loan showed that there is plenty of wealth in the country to furnish a large amount of revenue if the Government had the backbone to put taxes on those who are able to bear them."

Referring to the war phrase "to the last dollar and the last man" the speaker said: "There are a good many dollars standing between some supporters of the Government and their last one."

CRITICISM FOR MR. KING.

Dr. Clark agreed that the preamble of the amendment was un-fortunately worded, because he did not want to reflect in any way on Sir Robert Borden, who "is as much a victim of the war from his illness as if he had been in the front-line trenches." He criticised Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King for not outlining a policy when the latter condemned the Government for not having one. He well knew that the Liberals had a convention, but their tariff policy was almost entirely lifted from that of the Western farmers. He fancied that Opposition had gone back on its policy of 1896 in the matter of tariff. He would like to know where the Liberal Leader and some members of the party stood on tariff matters, pointing out that two Liberal members of the House, A. R. McMaster and Isaac Pedlow, had opposed Mr. O. R. Gould, a virtual free trader, in Assiniboia.

Mr. McMaster asked if Hon. W. R. Motherwell was not just as much a low-tariff man as the member, which brought from Dr. Clark the remark that Mr. Motherwell had gone through a snowstorm a few months ago and he did not know what the Provincial Minister's views were. He wondered, too, if in congratulating Mr. Asquith on being elected, Hon. Mr. King recalled that the English Liberal had fathered compulsory military service. He would vote for the amendment on broad grounds of public policy. Dr. Clark said that any member that really desired an election now was fond of adventure. "We are in deadly earnest," he said of the so-called cross-benchers, "and we believe that all the economic views we hold are vital to the progress and prosperity of this country."

Major G. W. Andrews, Centre Winnipeg, registered a protest against there being no intimation in the Speech from the Throne of further re-establishment of returned soldiers. Touching on the tariff, he said that he believed in "free trade in the same way is in Christianity." Major Andrews said he would vote for the amendment because he believed that his constituents desired an election as soon as possible. He had found that everywhere there cropped up "the confounded thing of taxing wealth," and there was a distinct feeling that the Government had not done what it should in that regard.

While believing in loyalty to a leader, and not forever breaking away when one could not have his own way he said that he was going to go to the cross-benches, where he would be freer. Last session when he voted against the Government he offered to resign, but his constituents endorsed his stand.

Mr. Thos. MacNutt, Saltcoats, urged efficiency in the enforcing of the income tax. He did not think that farmers should come under that law, but rather should be taxed on land values. He had a word of criticism for the Liberals because he did not know that all the Eastern members of that party were agreed on the tariff question. He believed that most men in the West were either low tariff or no tariff men. If he had any assurance that the Government would bring in a redistribution bill on the census before an election he might vote against the amendment. Otherwise he thought he would vote for it. He believed that the cross-benchers were independent in their views, not only individually, but collectively.

Mr. Levi Thomson, Qu'Appelle, Sask., emphasized the statement that the farmers did not represent in the House a class movement. Protective tariffs were class legislation; free trade was not. The former Whip felt that voting on the amendment was a question each member had to decide for himself, but he would support it.

TAKE THE WORD OF YOUR OWN NEIGHBORS

You Cannot Afford to Experiment with Your Health--People in All Parts of Canada Highly Recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a System Builder.

There is not a nook or corner in Canada, in the cities, towns, villages and on farms, where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have not been used. From one end of the country to the other they have brought back to breadwinners, their wives and families the splendid treasure of new health and new strength. You have only to ask your neighbors and they can tell you of some nerve-shattered man, some suffering woman, ailing youth or unhappy anaemic girl, who owes present health and strength to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

For many years Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been a household remedy not only in America but throughout the world. When Canadian soldiers landed in England they found advertised on all sides, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. To the men from Australia, from New Zealand, from South Africa and India, these same advertisements were like familiar home friends. When these men crossed to France one of the first signs that greeted their eyes was "Pilules Pink pour Personnes Pales du Dr. Williams." The world wide use of this Canadian remedy can be accounted for only by the merit these wonderful blood-making pills possess. Thousands of statements from grateful people who have been cured of ills due to weak, watery blood and shattered nerves, have been published. Some of these may have been your neighbors—all of them were somebody's neighbors, and can safely take their word for the benefit they have found through the timely use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER.

If more people knew how many ills and pains are due to thin, watery blood and how easily this condition could be remedied through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a great deal of suffering would be avoided. Men and women often suffer from stomach trouble, headaches and backaches, palpitation of the heart, and nervous complaints such as neuralgia, without suspecting that the whole trouble lies in weak, watery blood. The statement of Mrs. J. J. Murray, Corbetton, Ont., shows the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. She says:—"A few years ago my daughter, Lillie, was in a very badly run down condition. She was pale, thin, and scarcely able to go about. The least exertion made her heart palpitate so violently that we were actually afraid one of these spells might carry her off. She slept so badly that often she would lie awake until nearly morning. Treatment did not seem to help her and we were almost in despair when a friend advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A few weeks' use of this medicine showed a decided improvement, and a further use of the pills fully restored her health, and she has since been a strong, healthy girl. Some time later I was taken ill myself, being run-down from household care. A doctor was called in but his medicine did not seem to bring back my strength, and remembering what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for my daughter, I decided to drop the doctor's medicine and try them. The results that followed were like those in my daughter's case, and through the use of the pills I was soon a well woman. I am glad to give my experience in the hope that some other sufferer may find the way to health.

NURSING MOTHERS.

It is useless to tell a hard working woman to take life easily and not to worry. Care of the home and the children always bring their worries. But it is the duty of every woman to save her strength as much as possible, and to keep her blood supply in a healthy condition. Her future good health depends upon this. Mrs. B. Kilgour, Cabri, Sask., says:—"I have taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for a considerable time and have found them of the greatest benefit for my blood and nerves. I was terribly nervous and run down and was nursing my baby at the time I began taking the pills, and since taking them I feel like a different woman. My appetite is better, my blood purer and my nerves steadier and altogether I feel a hundred per cent. better. I will certainly recommend the pills to everybody I can."

WEAK AND NERVOUS.

Good health is the secret of happiness and the one chief secret of good health is rich, red blood. This rich, red blood can always be had through a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The value of the pills for this purpose is proved by Mrs. Carrey Boudreau, Beaumont, N. B., who says:—"When I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was very weak and nervous. I was always tired and my eyes were dull and heavy and I suffered greatly with headaches. But through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I am again a well woman in the full enjoyment of life, and I am quite willing the whole world should know the benefit I have found through this medicine."

AFTER INFLUENZA.

Strenuous work on a farm has much to do with the run-down condition of many who follow that occupation, and account for the readiness in which they fell victims to serious debilitating troubles. Mrs. Geo. Cuthbert, a farmer's wife who has proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills says:— "This past year my husband and myself have had to do all the work on our half-section farm. I had an attack of influenza and this coupled with heavy work left me badly run down. I sent for a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and by the time I had taken two boxes I was beginning to feel stronger, and through their further use I was again feeling quite fit. Indeed I believe that had it not been for the pills I would not have been able to do my work. I may add that while using the pills I took Pinklets occasionally as a laxative, and found them a great help."

LIKE A NEW PERSON.

When a girl or a woman is pale and feeble, feels tired out at the slightest exertion, is troubled with headaches or backaches, it is a sure sign that the blood is thin and watery, and that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be taken to restore the blood to that rich, red condition necessary to good health. Through the use of these pills Miss F. E. Hubley, Seabright, N. S., was restored to good health. She says:—"I have found that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills tone up the nerves and system and make one feel like a new person. When I started using them I was in very poor health and suffering from many of the symptoms of anaemia. Soon after beginning their use I found myself growing better, and after giving them a fair trial I found my health fully restored. As a result of what they did in my own case I can recommend them to all weak people as a great blood-builder."

WHAT DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS WILL DO.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a blood builder and nerve tonic. The rich, red blood that they make not only carries color to the cheeks and lips but gives vigor to the exhausted nerves and quiets the pains of neuralgia and sciatica. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain no opiates nor harmful drugs; they restore health and strength but do not give temporary stimulation.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Plants Can See, Touch and Taste

Plants possess at least three senses—sight, touch and taste. Though their manner of expressing their emotions is very modest, they are far from being inert. A very brief microscopic study of their life shows that they possess a sentient existence which, though less perfect than that of the higher animals, in some cases is equal to the sentient life of the polyps and sponges.

Sight is the best developed of the vegetable senses. By this sense the plant perceives the light, though it does not distinguish objects. The earth worm, the coral insect and the oyster enjoy about the same amount of sight; they have no localized visual organ, but they perceive the difference between light and darkness. When a ray of light reaches them they contract under the stimulus.

The influence of light is clearly shown by the plant kept in a room where there is only one window: the plant is so eager to get the light that it crosses its stems and turns its leaves broadside toward the window. This action has led students of plants to say that plants are "heliotropic." Physiologists say that the plant bends toward the light because the side in darkness grows faster than the other side. The simplet explanation is that the plant perceives the light and that it shows that it perceives it. The stem of the plant is perceptive. its sensitiveness of perception goes as far as its root, but the root shows its perception in a different way. If the stem is heliotropic the root is negatively heliotropic. The stem shows that it percieves the light by turning toward it, the root shows that it perceives the light by turning from it, just as persons with weak eyes turn from the light and seek the shadow when the light is strong.

A sense equally well developed in plants is that of touch. The sensitive plant is the exemplary case; the lightest touch causes it to furl its leaves and eventually it droops them toward the ground. Naturalists have explained this action by saying that a touch so influences the leaf that it drives the water to the depression in the stem and that the leaf immediately wilts for lack of internal moisture. Even if that is true, the plant is influenced by the contact of something outside itself. When an animal is influenced in the same way the result is due to the animal's sense of touch

The sense of taste is an endowment of plants of the lower orders, algae among others. When particles of different kinds are thrown in the water among the algae, the plants make a choice at once and cling to the objects they can assimilate; and if they are capable of perceiving the savor of their aliments and of choosing certain kinds out of a mass of different kinds, they may be said to be endowed with the sense of taste. Among the higher plants the sense of taste is less common and less easily distinguished, but in many cases it is undeniably present.

If an insect is set on the leaf of one of the drosera, the tentacles of the plant fall upon the morsel at once. If a non-nutritive substance is set on the same place, the plant gives no sign of recognition. The microscope shows that the tentacles quiver as if with delight when they close on an agreeable morsel, and that the plant secretes a special sap at that moment, which it does not secrete at any other time. At such times the plant is comparable to the gourmand whose mouth "waters." Plants possess, then, the senses of sight, touch and taste. They have given no evidence of other senses, but some branches of the algae family have two microscopic organs with many granulations which move incessantly. The two organs are remarkably like the organs of hearing of mollusks, worms and other low forms of animal life. The creatures of the vegetable world have a remarkable sense of direction in space. If a root growing vertically is set in the earth horizontally, it begins at once to turn the end of its root toward the centre of the earth.

THE WINNIPEG STRIKE ILLEGAL

In connection with the Winnipeg strike last summer, the Court of Appeal has handed down written judgments in the case of the King vs. R. B. Russell, one of the strikers, who was convicted. The three judges agreed on the verdict. Chief Justice Perdue contended that there was no protection for a person who committed acts during a trade strike that was punishable by statute. On the question of sympathetic strikes he said:

"It is lawful for workmen to combine in a strike in order to get higher wages because that would be a combination to regulate or alter the conduct of a master in his employment of his workmen. Persons who aided or encouraged such a strike would not be committing an unlawful act because they were endeavoring to bring about something that is legal. But supposing there is a strike of the moulders in A's foundry and in order to assist the strike the employees of a cartage company combine in a refusal to carry goods to or from A's foundry, or the railway company's employees combine in refusing to receive or handle A's goods; neither of these combinations comes within the protection afforded by section 590.

The judge, however, admitted that 'Sympathetic' or 'secondary' strikes are no longer 'actionable' in England by the Trades Disputes Act, 1906, 6 Ed. VII., c. 47, sections 3 and 5. We have no similar enactment in Canada legalizing such strikes. The law in Canada applying to such strikes would be the same as it was in England before the Trades Disputes Act, 1906, was passed. No doubt the Labor men will make an effort to have the Canadian law made uniform with the British law in this respect. His Lordship then says:

So far from being a legitimate strike, the combination was in fact, as the jury has found, a seditious conspiracy. To aid a brother trade union in its strike for higher wages, or to obtain higher wages for all, was not the real object of the combination. What took place before the strike shows that the accused and his associate 'Reds' aimed at something much more drastic. Their ultimate purpose, as declared in their public speeches, was revolution, the overthrow of the existing form of government in Canada, and the introduction of a form of socialistic or soviet rule in its place. This was to be accomplished by general strikes, force and terror, and, if necessary, by bloodshed."

Mr. Perdue cited another case where the Canadian law is different from the British law. Peaceful picketing is legal in the Old Country and illegal in Canada.

Judge Cameron said that "a combination to quit work is lawful only where its purpose is to obtain for the parties a benefit which they can lawfully claim. If the primary object is to injure others in their business or calling, or to deprive them of their liberty of action without just cause and not to advance the interests of the combination except perhaps in some remote and indirect way, it is unlawful. Corpus Juris, p. 570." The judge was satisfied that the Winnipeg strike was not an ordinary strike, but an attempt at revolution. On this he said:

The general strike of last summer was, in fact, an insurrectionary attempt to subvert the authority of our governments, municipal, provincial and Dominion, and substitute for them an irresponsible 'Strike Committee,' an attempt attended for a time with a measure of success which, looked at in retrospect, seems incredible. This 'Strike Committee' issued decrees in the approved soviet style. It put an end to street car transportation, shut off telephone communication, interfered with the city's water supply, called out the firemen from their posts and left the city without fire protection until the strikers' places had been filled by volunteers. When the members of the police force, renouncing their sworn allegiance, had voted to join the strikers, the 'Strike Committee' issued an edict that 'ordered' them back to duty. The delivery of milk, bread and ice was forbidden. Restaurants and eating places were closed save those favored with 'permit cards.' In the city delivery and transmission of His Majesty's mails were for a time completely stopped. The newspapers were suspended and telegraphic communication with the outside world forbidden. The special police force, organized to take the place of the ordinary police force when its members were finally dismissed for disobedience to their lawful superiors, was mobbed and driven from the streets and the city left practically without police protection.

If the facts are as stated, the Winnipeg strike was no ordinary trade dispute or strike. It was a matter that affected the whole community and it received little sympathy from the Labor men of Hamilton.

HAMILTON'S WAR MEMORIAL

Although Canada is up to the eyes in debt and the citizens of Hamilton have been putting up all kinds of money for all kinds of patriotic, church and charitable purposes, there is still enough left in the exchequer apparently to enable them to show their appreciation of their war heroes in the great war. Last evening a meeting of those interested in the scheme to erect some kind of a memorial to the men was held and the question discussed. It was agreed to make an effort to raise three quarters of a million dollars and to begin active operations for the money in the fall. The ladies belonging to the various patriotic societies will be asked to assist in the work.

Nothing was said as to the nature of the memorial that is to be raised, and we have no idea what is in the minds of the promoters, but that matter, we imagine, will need to be settled before a canvass for funds is made. It would not be easy raising money for an unknown object. Different people have different ideas and schemes for such a purpose, and it would be well were this settled. It might be as well were the returned men consulted. Some want a memorial hall, some a monument merely, others want something that will be a benefit to the disabled men and for widows and orphans of deceased soldiers. What are the citizens going to favor?

AN OPTIMISTIC NOTE

"Europe has not succumbed to its economic catastrophe. And I have faith enough, blind faith if you will, to believe that it will not succumb." was the keynote of an address on "Europe After the War," delivered by Francis H. Sisson, Vice-President of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, at the annual dinner of the Dominion Mortgage and Investment Association, King Edward Hotel, Toronto, last Thursday evening. But both he and Sir Thomas White emphasized the need of great thrift and great production. Mr. Sisson was very optimistic in his references to the financial and commercial condition and outlook of Great Britain. He declared that. "There has never been any doubt in the minds of those who understand British character, even superficially, and who are familiar to any extent with British resources, about the capability of Great Britain and the British Empire to pass through the reconstruction period successfully, as they have come through the war so gloriously. It is a great source of satisfaction and of supreme significance, however, that Great Britain is now actually 'turning the corner'—slowly but surely, in true British fashion," he said.

"England, like the United States, is selling a vast quantity of her goods abroad on credit, and of necessity buying on credit from the States and wherever else she can, since her stock of gold is quite inadequate to meet her debts because so many of her debtors are unable to settle in cash. It is contended, however, that the invisible items owing on current trade to Britain now more than counterbalance the visible 'unfavorable' balance of trade, so that current credits equal current debits."

The March number of the Commerce monthly, issued by the National Bank of Commerce in New York, contains much that endorses Mr. Sisson's statements. It says: "Notwithstanding the heavy discount in the pound sterling in this and in some other markets, the trade position of the United Kingdom has shown such consistent improvement during 1919 that, if American exports are to be maintained on a satisfactory level, Americans must be prepared to meet in friendly rivalry a vigorous British competition in every buying of the world, is the conclusion drawn as the result of an analysis of the situation."

The evidence of this betterment of the British trade position, it is pointed out, is a drop from £784,000,000 in 1918 to £669,000,000 in 1919 in Great Britain's adverse balance of trade. The great recuperative power shown is due to the fact that the war has not deprived the United Kingdom of her geographical advantage or of the accumulated knowledge and experience of centuries of international trade. Besides, Board of Trade estimates cited indicate that more than two-thirds of the so-called "adverse balance" was met in 1919 by "invisible exports." Including net income from shipping and from investments abroad. The Monthly further says:

"No more striking evidence of the strength of the British position can be cited than the fact that at the end of the year, although our production is four times that of Great Britain, our exports were running at the rate of 3,600,000 tons per year, or but 850,000 tons in excess of British exports. While British exports gained steadily throughout 1919, our iron and steel exports have declined steadily since June. British exports of machinery and tools are also gaining rapidly, despite the handicap of labor troubles. Exports of cotton yarn, cotton piece goods, woolen yarn and woolen worsted fabrics measured by weight and yardage, also show a constant and rapid increase throughout the year. Exports of woolen goods for 1919 were 30 per cent. over exports for 1912. The Monthly says that "the United Kingdom possesses assets which can be included in no balance sheet. Her success in international commerce and finance rests on entirely different foundations than such successes as have been won by the United States. Our assets are our natural resources. Geographical position is the foremost British asset."

THE SUN LIFE

The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada is one of the largest and most prosperous financial institutions in the whole British Empire. Several new and interesting records in the insurance business were made by the company during 1919. The 49th annual report has just been published and shows that the new business actually issued and paid for during the past year was $86,548,850, being an increase of $34,957,457 or 67.7 per cent. over 1918. The tremendous business of the Sun Life will be realized when it is stated that applications for new assurances retained during 1919 exceeded one hundred million dollars. The figure creates a distinct record in the insurance business of the Dominion, as no Canadian company has ever before approached this total.

The business in force amounted to $416,358,462, showing an increase of $75,548,805. The assets of the company were increased by $8,091,089 and now amount to $105,711,468, while the report shows a net surplus of $8,037,440 over and above all liabilities and capital stock which indicates the importance attached by the company to safety and protection. The company paid out to policy-holders and their beneficiaries $12,364,000, bringing the total amount paid out in this connection since organization to $91,227,532. Another record was made in regard to income with a total of $25,704,201, or an increase of $4,053,101 over the previous year. Owing to the remarkable development in the business of Canada's greatest life assurance corporation, the directors feel that the business in the Dominion is due to enormously expand during the present year. Mr. Ralph C. Ripley is the district agent, with offices in Hamilton.

Now don't get peeved and don't misrepresent us. We forsook the Liberal party and supported the Union Government all through the war and also supported conscription. But we never deserted our Liberal principles. We are still Liberal and are not ashamed of it. We are neither a dyed-in-the-wool Liberal organ, nor any other kind of an organ, nor are we a political phonograph like some of our contemporaries.

One hundred American bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church have memorialized the English Archbishops against the scandalous dicker between Lloyd George and the Sultan. At a mass-meeting in New York, Dr. Manning, of Trinity Church, predicted another war if this should be accomplished. The meeting adopted strong resolutions condemnatory of this consideration for the Sultan, says the Philadelphia Record. Well, why doesn't the United States get into the game? It should have something to say about the Sultan's future, if it would sit in with the statesmen at Versailles.

The Commission sitting at Kapuskasing to investigate conditions among the settlers up there heard some queer and some sad stories from some of those who testified. With one or two exceptions, they all declared that they were unable to make a living and that the promises made to them had not been carried out. One man who walked home ten miles in a blizzard for his wife's sake, said that if he did not get home he feared that she would be demented. "She never sees a light at night and seldom meets a human being during the day," he said. Col. McLaren, of this city, who is one of the Commissioners, believes that if a pulp mill was erected in the vicinity the problem would be solved as the settlers could earn money there while they would be working in their spare time cleaning up their farms.

MOWAT'S VIEW.
(Brantford Expositor.)

Major Mowat, who bears a name which ought to be an open sesame to Liberalism wherever found, declares himself to be quite comfortable in the ranks of the Unionists, and that there are better Liberals within those ranks than are following Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King. Perhaps the Major is right, and again perhaps his view of things is colored by the fact that as member for Parkdale he holds his parliamentary seat by courtesy of the Conservative party.

THE ANSWER.
(Galt Reporter.)

The Hamilton Times, Liberal, wants to know when the Brantford Expositor, Unionist, intends to re-enter the Liberal ranks. The reply can be whispered: About the time W. F. Cockshutt runs in Brantford as a Conservative candidate.

"ON WITH THE DANCE."
(Farmers' Sun.)

"On with the dance, let joy be unconfined," was evidently the attitude of the Federal Government in connection with the opening of Parliament. Press reports stated all the pre-war time splendor was revived and that the opening was the most brilliant and spectacular in the history of the country. The society columns of the press are filled with reports of the beautiful gowns, and jewels worn by the ladies, the uniforms of the men, the splendor of the decorations, and in general give a lot of prominence to the doings of the "Four Hundred"—"those things so dear to the hearts of the Canadian people," as Lieut.-Governor Clarke, of Toronto, would say.

Canada to-day is staggering under a national debt that approaches $2,000,000,000. We have just closed a five-year war in which over 50,000 of our bravest and best died on the battlefields of France and Flanders. The war is only over a year, yet an extravagant Government stages a society show for the opening of Parliament "exceeding in grandeur anything even attempted in the history of the country."

INEVITABLE.
(Buffalo News.)

Bolshevism has probably changed somewhat in aspect since the early days of the Lenine and Trotzky regime, but the idea behind it has not. There is probably no need now to spread the gospel of communism with fire and sword, for all opposition has been destroyed. It is unthinkable that Bolshevism will be permanent, though it may survive for some few years. It is ruthless despotism; it is basicly hostile to democrcy. A test of strength between them is inevitable, and it will not be democracy that will go down unless reason flees the world.

BUNK.
(London Advertiser.)

The Irish question has provided a lot of tragedy, considerable comedy and a prodigious amount of bunk. Of this last must be considered Count Plunkett's statement that if Ireland is granted the status of a dominion the United States "has promised to withdraw the reservation to the covenant of the League of Nations, which affects Dominion votes in the League of Nations, and, also to assent to enter the League of Nations, and, also to assent to enter the League of Nations if Ireland is granted representation on a dominion status." It is also stated that the United States would undertake to consider adjustment of the exchange situation if Ireland's problem is settled on the dominion basis.

The sheer nonsense of the announcement will be fully realized by a glance at the present fight in the American Senate. The United States 'promises" —according to Plunkett. If he means, by that, the Wilson administration, when did Lodge and his band of treaty-wreckers agree to any decision of the president on the League of Nations issue? If the United States Government made any such promise as Plunkett reports, the Republican Senate, bitterly hostile as it is to any proposal of Wilson's would quickly kill it. Neither has the Republican Senate the right to say what the United States would or would not do. Finally the American people have too much common sense and respect for others to offer any such interference in the domestic affairs of the British Empire as Plunkett's statement would indicate. Those who have handed the count this bunk do not represent the American Government or nation. Some of the party bosses, with the corralling of the Irish vote as an object, have been imposing on Plunkett, "pulling his leg." His amazing statement will appear less startling when it is viewed in the light of an early presidential election.

"You women are certainly hard to please," growled Mr. Dibbs. "Didn't I just now tell you these pork chops were done to a turn?"

THE SANDMAN.

When the long, hot day is over,
And the sun drops down the west,
And the childish hands are weary,
And the childish feet must rest,
The Sandman steals through the portals
Where the dying sunlight gleams,
And touches the tired eyelids
And lulls them into dreams.

Even so, when life is over,
And the long day's march is past,
We wait in gathering shadows
Till the Sandman comes at last;
Sad are our hearts and weary,
And long the waiting seems;
Lord, we are tired children,
Touch Thou our eyes with dreams.
Take from the slackened fingers
The toys so heavy grown,
Give to thy tired children
Visions of Thee alone;
Then, when at length the shadows
Darken adown the west,
Send to us Death, Thy Sandman,
To call Thine own to rest.

SOFT COAL MUST BECOME DEARER

Fuel Administrator Warns Ontario Manufacturers

That An Increase in Price is Sure.

Toronto, March 6.—H. A. Hamilton, Fuel Administrator for Ontario, made public the following statement yesterday:

"A careful survey of the bituminous coal situation throughout the Province shows the difficulty consumers experience in getting away from old conditions and adapting themselves to the new. Manufacturers must realize that coal will, in fact, must increase in price; whatever the decision reached by President Wilson's committee an increase in price in keeping with increased wage allowance is inevitable; this will necessitate a revision of Government prices, and it is very likely al price restrictions will be removed.

"Particular attention must be paid to the condition of the United States market and lake trade; the eastern States are insistent in their demands for increased tonnage, and with the middle and western States are keeping their demands prominently before the United States Coal Commission.

"The docks at the lake heads are depleted and a steady flow of coal will be necessary to supply present demands and provide storage supplies for next winter."

TWO FREEDOMS.

There are two freedoms—the false, where a man is free to do what he likes; the true, where a man is free to do what he ought. Every man or woman who reaches the years of maturity is free to choose, and they can easily distinguish between the true and the false, and well know that the highest and truest independence is ever found in the path of duty. The false freedom which lures them into divers temptations and sins must ever lead into trouble and distress. If we deliberately break God's law, we know that evil consequences must follow, and after once yielding to temptation it becomes easier to surrender a second time. Every man is master of himself to this extent, and whether he elects to follow his own ordering or to conform his will to God's will determines his misery or happiness here and in the hereafter.—Charles Kingsley.

KEEPING A HIGH IDEAL.

(Layman, in Sheffield, Eng., Independent.)

We all have our ideals of religion and the Christian life; but while we profess the same fellowship in our aims, and the same desire to see Chistrianity a practical religion, and its knowledge diffused through all classes of people and all countries, it is a truism that is hardly any two people agree on how to set about it or on what lines religious bodies shall act. There is in all of us a peculiarity, an individual perspective, essentially our own, which makes it difficult for us to see things from any other standpoint. No two people see exactly alike, and two people can describe an occurrence which both have witnessed in practically the same terms—the result, I suppose, of what is known as the personal idiosyncrasy. You never saw two men running a race in exactly the same way; they are both bent on reaching the goal, but each exerts himself in his own particular method, regardless of what the other man is doing. That is one of ths things that an onlooker notices in church work. In spite of all the talk of brotherhood, there is still too much of a tendency to ignore the lines on which others are putting forth their efforts and/to assume that our own way is pre-eminently the best. The ideal brotherhood in religion will never be achieved thus. We must know each other better in order to avoid erroneous judgments of other people. Their ways and interests may be just as good as, or even better than our own. In any case, it is certain that if we know each other better we should love each other better, and judge each other with better sympathy and consideration when we differ. The closer we are bound together by the ties of Christian Brotherhood the better the possibilities of attaining that ideal unity which shall do so much towards making the whole world Chirst's.

We want to prevent misunderstandings between one church and another, and between one class and another. Then our ideals must be high and clear, our efforts to maintain the banner of Christianity in the eyes of the nation persistent and wholehearted. The churches have of late been undoubtedly losing influence upon the national life, and this is no doubt due to a considerable extent to the absence of solidarity among them. The people we most desire to influence stand aloof and watch our disputes about little points that after all mean nothing compared with the basal truths of Christianity. "Can't agree among themselves," sneers the man in the street; "then how can they expect us to believe what they preach?" And all the time we know and admit that the severance of the churches means the enfeeblement of Christianity in relation to the national life.

The only hope for the maintenance of any such high standard of civilized life as we desire in the future lies in keeping our ideals high.

How are we to bring our ideals into practical correlation with these obviously necessary requirements of the day? That is the problem which our churches will have to solve, and the sooner they tackle it the better, otherwise organized religion will presently hold no place at all in the minds of the nation at large.

The ideal Christian life that we desire to see on all sides must begin in our own homes; reforms must begin there before they can affect the church. Reform, like charity, begins at home. We shall not be moved even by the eloquence of an archangel, unless his life is, or attempts to be, on the level of his words. Here, indeed, is the whole secret of the real Christian life.

Every day comes the good news of wonderful cures with Ferrozone.

In Peterboro it worked marvels for Louis Meehan—put him right on his feet—made him entirely well.

"About three years ago," says Mr. Meehan, "I had the Grippe, which left me in a very run-down condition that finally developed into Dyspepsia. I was unable to eat but a few things, and had a craving for acid. I gave up treating with the doctors because they did not help me and on the advice of a friend used Ferrozone. It not only cured me of Dyspepsia and Billousness, but has built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferrozone as an ideal restorative."

Ferrozone gives you force, energy, vim.

It strengthens the stomach, cures indigestion, prevents headaches—guarantees good health.

Thousands use Ferrozone—they all feel better; try it yourself—sold in 50c. boxes, six for $2.50, at all dealers or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston Ont.

The new doorkeeper at the local museum had evidently learned the rules by heart before taking over the job.

"Here, sir, you must leave your umbrella at the door," he said to a visitor who was going straight through the turnstile.

"Then you must go back and get one," was the stern reply. "No one is allowed to pass in here unless he leaves his umbrella at the door."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

FAULTS.

The greatest of faults, I should say, is to be conscious of none.

Men still had faults, and men will have them still;
He that hath none and lives as angels do,

THE SIN OF OMISSION.

It isn't the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone
That gives you a bit of a heartache
At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten,
The letters you did not write,
The flowers you did not send, dear,
Are your haunting ghosts at night.

The stone you might have lifted
Out of a brother's way;
The bit of heartsome counsel
You were too hurried to say;
The loving touch of the hand, dear,
The gentle, winning tone,
Which you had no time nor thought for
With troubles enough of your own.

Those little acts of kindness,
So easily out of mind,
Those chances to be angels
Which we poor mortals find—
They come in night and silence,
Each sad, reproachful wraith,
When hope is faint and flagging,
And a chill has fallen on faith.

For life is all too short, dear,
And sorrow is all too great,
To suffer our slow compassion
That tarries until too late;
And it isn't the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone
Which gives you a bit of a heartache
At the setting of the sun.
Margaret E. Sangster.

THE GOLDEN DAYS OF NOW.

I do not know of any more pernicious fallacy than that which misleads people into thinking that things will be better farther on. The Past was beautiful; the Future looks rosy; but never by any means can the Present be made to appear in a good light to some people.

What a queer restlessness it is that makes us wish our days away! They are short enough when all is told; the wise person ought to treasure every hour of every one of them. Yet how willingly we fling away the sub- of the future. It gets to be a perfect o fthe future. It gets to be a perfect mania with many of us to plan what we will do in the sweet bye-and-bye. We can't enjoy the winter for longing for the spring; and we no more than get into summer before we plan making our fall clothes and our winter activities. Instead of making sure of doing something definite this year, we fondly hope the way will open better next year. In nine cases out of ten it never does, but still we fondly look ahead, until such time as we get old enough to look backward instead of forward—when we reverse the process

I know a mother whose whole hope has been built up on getting her children raised and out of her way. And I know another mother across the way who has got hers grown up and away, and sits alone in a big, silent house and longs to have them at her knee again.

I know a girl who has wasted the winter thinking about the spring. She will go out then, she will motor, she will have new clothes. Meantime she has squandered three or four months of the most precious time she will ever posses, and when spring comes don't think for a minute she will be satisfied—she will begin to worry about a new set of furs for the fall!

Have you been longing for spring? What will it bring you when it arrives? A bad case of "spring fever," likely. Housecleaning and garden-making, no doubt. Twice as much work and worry as now. Will the weather be fine, think you? Not a bit more enjoyable than at present. Somebody has said that spring is nothing but six weeks of east wind.

Of course spring is that, and a good deal more. It has many beauties and many new joys. We would be dull and ungrateful if we failed to enjoy it when it comes. But the point that I am trying to make is this: If you are not happy now it isn't likely you will be happy in the spring. You must find your happiness every day in the common things of life, and in the satisfaction of doing your work well and filling every hour with something worth while.

Don't you think that laziness is at the root of much of our longing and looking ahead? We are too indolent to grasp now the good things we mean to secure at some later time. We fondly dream of success— for dreaming is one of the easy things to do—but the day never comes when we feel like buckling down to the task and grasping the new power we would like to have. Concentration and application to the task in hand is the best cure ever found for the disease of dissatisfaction. Stop wishing your life away! Try to see the things of gold on the garments of to-day.

PICKING A HUSBAND

For a long time it has been held that having a career and having a husband did not go well together in the case of most women. As a result many of the brainiest women remained unmarried. They claimed that they were wedded to their work, and could afford to do without the ties of husband, home, and children.

The New York Tribune recently showed a page of women very prominent in literature, art, music, and business, all of whom are married, and all of whom declare that their husbands, instead of being a hindrance, have contributed amazingly to their success. These women should do much to explode the old theory that a woman to be a success had better not entangle herself with domestic affairs. But they all agree on one point—the man must be a fine specimen, above the average. In short the woman who wants to be a big success must "pick" her husband.

To young women ambitions for careers, Mary Roberts Rinehart once said: "First, pick your husbands!" Mrs. Rinehart could afford to give this piece of advice, for everybody knows that her husband, Dr. Stanley Marshall Rinehart, himself a famous man, has been her constant adviser and companion. He was in sympathy with her writing, and helped her to make her start. Mrs. Rinehart, who did not begin to write until after the birth of her youngest boy, was happy and comfortable enough in her home to have made her indifferent to success in a new line of endeavor. It was her husband who encouraged her early efforts, and who suggested that she should rent an office, without a telephone, where she could work undisturbed for a few hours every day. The home has become for both of them a place of relaxation and rest, and she claims their three boys have never been neglected through her writing, for when it came to a choice between home and work, she always chose home.

Kathleen Norris is another writer of stories who attributes her success to her husband. She says when she had no faith in her own writing, her husband believed in her. He secured some of her early stories from an old desk, and sent them out without asking his wife's permission. The first one went on twenty trips before it was accepted by the Atlantic Monthly. After that success followed with surprising rapidity.

A great lover of home is Louise Homer, the famous contralto of the Metropolitan Opera. She is an example of beautiful American motherhood. Besides being the singer and actress that she is, she is the mother of six children, and the comrade of her husband, the well-known composer, Sidney Homer. She insists that he made her career. Without him she would not have risen any higher than singing in a church or at concerts. He proposed that she study singing in Paris, rather than in Germany, for he recognized the importance of the growing school there. Once in Paris he shifted her training to that best suited to an opera singer. He rehearsed her in her roles and has always been her fairest and best friend.

Happy marriages are sometimes considered a rarity between temperamental people. Perhaps the publicity of these persons' lives emphasizes the domestic difficulties which they have. It is doubtful whether artists and opera singers have any more marital unhappiness than ordinary citizens.

It is common to attribute a man's success to his wife. Her advice and common sense suggestions may, indeed, spur his ambitions. She is often his silent partner. Why then may not the influence of a husband contribute to his wife's success in the big outside world? Often these masculine "silent partners" have more to do with their wives' success than they get credit for. Their business instincts may save their wives from many a pitfall, and in more ways than one they make it possible for the woman to do big things outside her own home. Women spend much time outside their homes these days anyway, and they may as well be engaged in something really important as in bridge parties, shopping or fancy work.

The marriages of the future will be on a more equal basis than heretofore. Girls will not marry because they are in need of a meal ticket, but they will choose their husbands because of real love and compatibility. The husband of a successful woman will become more and more a factor in her career. And the women of the future will really "pick" their husbands.

LESSONS FROM GREAT CHARACTERS OF FICTION.

NUMBER I.

SAMUEL PICKWICK.

When we first make the acquaintance of the immortal Pickwick through the posthumous papers of the Pickwick Club, we are inclined to ask, "Was there ever such a gulible old noodle as this?" But as we read on our interest in him grows, and with it our admiration and respect. Before we reach the closing chapters we willingly award him the distinction of being "Dickens' Grand Old Man."

Mr. Pickwick is one of those absolutely honest characters, without a trace of subtlety, who never suspects ulterior motives or underhand dealings in others, and consequently falls a prey to such sharks of society as Alfred Jingle and Job Trotter, being also a victim of the sharp practices of Dodson and Fogg.

In fact, it looks as if our friend Pickwick might have had a troublesome life of it to the end, had he not (fortunately for him) fallen into the hands of that illustrious, quick-witted, and devoted servant, Samuel Weller. Sam immediately recognizes the honorable and generous qualities of his master, coupled with a complete inaptitude for looking after himself, and straightway resolves to make it his chief occupation in life to protect his master against imposters. It is in this capacity of aidelde-camp that Sam furnishes, to a great extent, the splendid humor with which the book is replete.

Mr. Pickwick's abhorrence of fraud and deception is only equalled by his leniency and generosity toward the perpetrators, when they in turn fall upon evil times, and are brought to some degree of contrition. An example of his high sense of chivalry is evinced by his willingness to pay the costs of the law suit, "Bardell versus Pickwick," in order that his false accuser (being a woman) shall not be compelled to remain in the Fleet.

Our hero's prevailing love of adventure and "cold punch" leads him into some rather embarrassing predicaments, from which the faithful Sam always extricates him, little the worse, and considerably the wiser. Sam sometimes takes advantage of these occasions to impart to his master some of his own philosophy, gained from his experience of life, or inculcated by his worthy father, that redoubtable character, Tony Weller.

One of these unfortunate incidents occurs at the Great White Horse, Ipswich, an inn at which the club is staying. Mr. Pickwick, having covered himself with confusion, by mistaking other apartments for his own, is discovered by Sam in the small hours of the morning shivering in the corridor, and searching in bewilderment for his own room. After Sam had seen his master safely in bed, Mr. Pickwick confides in him that though he should stay in this place six months he will never again trust himself about alone at night. Sam commends this determination on the part of his master in the following words: "That the werry prudentest resolution as you could come to, sir. It is in this capacity of aide-de-camp arter you, sir, when your judgment goes awisiting."

Throughout the entire story this benevolent old gentleman simply radiates kindness and good feeling. And we can heartily endorse Sam's views when he says, "Blest if I don't believe that his heart must have been born five and twenty years arter his body at least."

When we finally close the book, it is with a special sense of gratitude to Dickens that he has created this whole-souled and genial old gentle- vividly in his wonderful and inimitable works of fiction.

A few leftover canned peas, a little minced, cooked carrot or some finely shredded canned string beans, or diced cooked celery may be added to this soup. # CHURCHES MUST BE DEMOCRATIC TO SUCCEED

Dr. Sparling, in Fine Address, at Church of Ascension, Says So.

BAN AUTOCRACY

Teach the World Liberty, Equality and Fraternity, He Exhorts.

Rev. Dr. Sparling, of Centenary Methodist Church, spoke last evening at a Friday evening Lententide service at the Church of the Ascension. Dr. Sparling's address embraced the church, with its needs and duties, in the present time of stress, when there is so much political and labor strife in the world.

"I do not think that my church has any special message to the church, but now that the churches are coming together to their common centre, it will spread to all parts of the world. But the question of the day is: is the church adapting itself to the needs of the age? Conscientious efforts are needed to dispel petty jealousy among the churches. During the past few years there has been a great change in the attitude of the people towards authority, and no longer is authority despotic and infallible. The people are now decided that they must govern themselves, and this also means that children can no longer be coerced. Inspiration must be the means to their education, that the mind may find the truth for itself. This is the stand the church must take.

"The age of passive submission is past, and now not a day passes but there are upheavals of some sort. But all these are marked by democracy, which is the foreword of the entire world to-day. But it is not enough to ask, 'Is the world safe for democracy?' What we must ask is: 'Is democracy safe for the world?' True democracy must take for its motto, 'Man for Mankind' This is essentially the true battle-cry of real democracy, and this is the basis on which the church must work. To teach the world to live up to 'Liberty, Equality and Fraternity.' That is what the world is striving for, and where does it get its theme? From the doctrines of the life of Christ.

"No institution which is not itself democratic can further democracy. Therefore, if the churches are autocratic, they must fail. They must allow freedom of thought, and the right to every man to follow the dictation of his own conscience. They must rest on a foundation deep in the spiritual nature of the people. Do not forget this. No person can be complete in himself!

"This applies even more so to the church. So they must work in unison one with the other, and not stand aloof from each other, that true democracy, living on the doctrines of Christ, may be introduced into the entire world," concluded Dr. Sparling.

GOVERNMENT MAY FLOAT ONE MORE LOAN

Gol. B. O. Hooper, secretary of the fund, outlined the steps taken to date.

Col. B. O. Hoper, secretary of the the chairman that so few answered the call to the meeting, as 200 cards were issued to those who should have been deeply interested.

Much discussion centred round the addition of the gentler sex as active members on the committee. Great gallantry was displayed by Lieut.-Col. C. R. McCullough and Sergt.-Major Tresham in their insistence that the women and their respective organizations should be identified with the working forces of the campaign. Consequently many of the women's organizations hitherto not added to the complement of workers were added.

The work of the organization is assuming much larger proportions than at first anticipated. Until the present time J. R. Wells has acted as assistant secretary to Col. Hooper, but begged last night to be excused from further duties. The appointment of a permanent secretary was discussed at length as well as the opening of an office until after the close of the campaign. Col. Hooper's suggestion that a small committee be appointed to arrange such details, and employ a permanent secretary and stenographer, combined, was adopted.

Mr. Stephen suggested that the actual collection of the funds be not attempted this year, in view of the already heavy financial drain on the populace by reason of the obligations undertaken for the Forward Movement. Chairman Coppley met the argument with the statement that by fall sixty per cent. of the obligations undertaken would be met. F. W. Tresham declared it would be a reproach on public patriotism, to delay the campaign later than the fall, and pointed out the growing apathy of the public towards such things when unduly delayed.

F. F. MacPherson, principal of the Normal, suggested that the campaign machinery of the Patriotic Fund be requisitioned by the present committee to put the "pep" into the drive. It was finally decided to launch the campaign as near the first week in October as possible. Chairman R. L. Smith, of the Publicity Committee, will be given orders to proceed with the publicity campaign as soon as he returns from his trip abroad. Amongst the suggestions as to the planning of the publicity campaign, was the issuing of a questionnaire to the many clubs and organizations in the city for ideas, which was deemed advisable. A motion was also passed approving of the form of the organization as outlined, and giving it power to spend all necessary money for clerical assistatnce to carry on the campaign. Secretary Hooper insisted on a strong representation of women on the committee in whatever capacity they may deem their services to be of the best.

"We don't want the impression to reach the patriotic women of Hamilton that this is solely and purely a man's job," explained Col. Hooper. "I want the women to know they are wanted as a real part of this organization."

Mrs. W. E. Sanford, Mrs. H. S. Griffin, Lady Gibson and Miss Crerar will be asked to call a public meeting of all women interested for the purpose of organizing to assist the committee in whatever way they may deem in the best interests of the movement.

The name of the organization was changed last night, and in future will be known as "The War Memorial Erected by the Men, Women and Children of the City of Hamilton," which will be inscribed on the memorial.

The next meeting of the committee will take place on April 9.

DEFENDANTS HAD RIGHT TO BLOCK POLICE

Chief Clark, the officer who went to Lee's home, at Stoney Creek, to get the car, said he found that several parts had been taken off the auto.

He asked Maggie Lee for the parts, but she would not give them to them, Albert Lee then slammed the door in the Chief's face. Chief Clark finally broke the door down and was going in the house when Maggie Lee jumped at him and scratched his face. The parts of the car were finally found and the car was brought to Hamilton.

Albert Lee denied having anything to do with slamming the door. Maggie Lee denied scratching Chief Clark. The Lees seemed to be of the opinion that Chief Clark was not a great lover of the truth. Chief Clark seemed to think the same of the Lee people.

Judge Snider, in dismissing the case, said:

"At the time the document was given out there was no recorded judgment anywhere. If a record is necessary to take out a warrant it is too late to make the record after the seizure of the automobile, and it must be considered necessary, as it was made since the trial began. I do not think the magistrate can speak by mere order issued in that way. He must speak by warrant if he wants to make a seizure. While a demand was made to the daughter of the house, there was no demand to the man, who owned the auto, and I do not think there was a strict legal right to break into the house. The case is withdrawn from the jury, and I will make any order protecting the afficer that I can. The chief constable was not in a position to decide whether the action should be taken, as he was acting under instructions. The defendants did not break the law by not letting him in."

The first action to be taken up after the criminal cases had been disposed of, was that of Sam. Williams vs. Gordon Wright. The plaintiff claimed $600 damages for injuries done to his taxi cab when a car driven by Wright collided with it. The accident happened at the corner of Hughson and King street, on the south side of Gore Park. William Smith was driving Williams' car and had come up Hughson street and was just turning on King street east when Wright's car crashed into the taxi cab. Wright had been travelling west.

Williams, the first witness, told a few facts about his business. When asked if he could drive a car, Williams, a very stout man, replied, "No, because I can not get into the space between the seat and the wheel."

Smith, the driver, said that he judged Wright's car to have been travelling at a speed of 30 or 35 miles an hour. Wright had told Smith after the collision, that he was in a hurry to get to the football game.

Other witnesses said that Wright's car had been travelling at a fairly fast rate of speed.

Court was then adjourned until today.

After being out for an hour yesterday afternoon, the jury on the case of J. Vollick, charged with wounding and assaulting J. Postelnik, returned a verdict of "guilty" on the assault charge and "not guilty" of the wounding. Judge Snider announced that sentence would be passed on the prisoner next Tuesday.

THE Right House presents this superb collection of Oriental Rugs as one of extreme importance. Their general scarcity, instead of having caused public interest to decline, has whetted a desire for them. We cannot place too much emphasis on the advisability of purchasing now, as working conditions have changed in the Orient as elsewhere, and the days when weavers were content to sit hour after hour, day after day, year after year, for the equivalent of a few cents a day, are gone, probably forever. Those who already have rugs of this kind, or who will obtain them now, will have reason to count themselves fortunate in the years to come.

WINTER COLOR.

(London Advertiser.)

"Oh, wind that clusters and wind that blows,
What color under your footstep glows;
Beauty you summer from winter's snows,
And you are the pathway that leads to the rose."

And thus we perhaps give an occasional thought to the winds and snows of winter. We have come to think of the shut-in season as colorless and uninteresting in the out-of-doors and pass unheeding the brave little bits of brightness that remain, never dreaming of "warming ourselves at the coals of the sumac's dying fire," which, though lacking its brilliant plumage, still gayly flaunts its flowers of deeper wine. Out in the sleeping gardens and parks on a misty day there is a silvery blur over leafless shrubbery that is beautiful to discover and in long lines on the city streets, and in irregular woodland sittings there are grey tree-trunks, luminous and silver-sheened, lovelier, perhaps, than their branches and twigs of brown.

The beeches and oaks, busily whispering in the sheltered wood places by means of the persistent little leaves that cling to twig-fingers, are set proudly dreaming, when the sun falls tenderly on their brave bronze foliage and lights here and there a stiff little fold into golden glints of remembered autumns. Lichen moss, delicate silver work of frosted beauty, clings here and there, and in sheltered nooks undiscovered by snow there are vivid green moss patches on old stumps. On the low-set tangled twigs of hawthorns there are occasional crimson gleams of fruit left by the birds for a needy day. The trailing bridal wreath wistfully keeps brown seeds of remembered blossoms close by drooping poplars with beautifully mottled trunks of white and black.

The evergreens, so faithful in their beauty are at their best in the grey months, and was there ever such flash of glory among them as the crimson of the cardinal, or such blue as the touches in the plumage of the bluejay; such delicate shading as the blue-grey of the nut-hatch, and such vivid black as the crown of the chickadee. Perhaps the least noticed, but none the less lovely to discerning eyes are the withered stems and blades of rushes and weeds in marshlands with their delicate tints of pale gold. All these quiet bits of color have new value as we watch for them in unexpected places on days of grey or gold—

"So shall our hearts grow tender as we dream.
So shall our souls receive God's finger-mark."

W. C. T. C.

The regular meeting of Hamilton Union was held on Thursday in the Y. W. C. A., Mrs. Cameron presiding. The opening exercises, shared in by several members, were inspiring. Reports by the respective officers and the conduct of routine business was carried through. Following this a discussion arose regarding the medals given annually by the union to the public school senior leaving classes for the highest marks in temperance. The new superintendent, being unable to take up the work (through other duties), the former one was asked to co-operate and report at the next meeting. A committee was formed to buy material for comfort bags, to be presented to the Welland Canal Mission to Sailors. A resolution was unanimously carried, endorsing the action of the economic committee of the Woman Citizens' League, in publicly drawing attention to the need for economy in dress, and urging women to wear the blue ribbon, token of their intention and practice. The meeting also endorsed the action of the civic legislation committee in moving to change the date of the civic elections, New Year's Day being specially unfavorable to the women voters.

Delegates were appointed to the Dominion Alliance Convention in Toronto next week. The feature of the afternoon was an address by the County Superintendent, Mrs. (Dr.) Wickett, on "Medical Temperance." The address was delivered with the speakers usual easy grace, and the matter tended to inform and to confirm the convictions already entertained by those present. At the close Mrs. Wickett was tendered a hearty vote of thanks.

The regular meeting of the Duet Club will be held on Wednesday, March 10, at 3.30 o'clock, in the Conservatory of Music Hall.

MISSION TO LEPERS.

Mrs. Fletcher presided over a most interesting and instructive meeting on Thursday of the Hamilton Auxiliary Mission to Lepers. There was a large attendance. The reports were most satisfactory, notwithstanding the many extra calls for help. The treasurer, Mrs. McKenzie, announced that she had sent Mr. Bailey nearly $100 more last December than the year before, and had still a good balance to be forwarded in June. She read a most grateful letter received from Mr. Bailey. Mrs. McHaffie reported having sent $155 for the special protiges. Mrs. Boyle brought from the Central W. C. T. U. eleven pairs of socks, three pairs of knee caps and two scarfs, these to be forwarded to the Rev. E. Cannon, Purulia. It was decided to make the socks a little smaller, on account of their being given to the women, also to make caps for the boys; and to ask for gifts for the girls and boys of handkerchiefs, dolls, soap, mirror, comb, needle case, hair ribbons; boys, knives; pencils, books, whistles, etc. Mr. Cameron wrote to Mrs. Parn, saying how much the socks and cuffs sent in November were appreciated and how kind it was of the friends in Hamilton to make and send them. It was decided to forward every month anything that was suitable for the lepers that was brought in. Miss Kennedy read an extract from the "camp" in which Her Excellency Lady Chelmsford at a meeting in India said. She felt if the right methods were adopted in thirty years India could be rid of leprosy, by separating the lepers and placing their little ones in homes before they had a chance to develop that horrible disease.

The opera is being produced by the Society of American Singers and is enjoying a run of unqualified success, this being the seventh week of its production. Miss Pringle made her initial appearance in the part on Monday night after a fortnight's rehearsal.

NIAGARA DIOCESAN BOARD W. A.

The Niagara Diocesan Board of the Woman's Auxiliary met on Wednesday, March 3, in the parish hall of All Saints' Church, a large number of delegates being present. Ven. Archdeacon Forneret opened the meeting with prayer, and gave the devotional address on "The Doctrine of the Holy Catholic Church."

The recording secretary reported that Mrs. Tebbs has been presented by the Seniors, Girls' and Junior branches of St. Luke's W. A., Burlington, with a life membership on the Dominion Board of the W. A. Four new life members received welcome to the Diocesan Board, namely, Mrs. Kirk, St. James', Hamilton; Miss Lee, Welland; Mrs. Maw, Toronto, made a life member by Port Robinson W. A., and Miss Jessie Peene, St. Thomas', Hamilton.

The new secretary for Girls' Branches was introduced in the person of Miss Mack, appointed by the executive.

The corresponding secretary announced the dates of the annual meeting of the Diocesan Board as April 27, 28 and 29.

The order of business was then suspended and the president introduced Miss Russell, a missionary from India, who gave a most interesting address on conditions among women of that country, with special reference to the child widows and their sufferings. Miss Russell spoke of the opportunities now afforded to lady missionaries for work among the women of India, and of the importance of medical missions. In addition to the deep interest attaching to her subject, Miss Russell proved a delightful speaker and her address was thoroughly appreciated.

The treasurer presented a most satisfactory statement of the incoming results for the year; as an expression of thankfulness the Doxology was then sung.

Evidence of progress was noted from reports of the officers; the statement of the extra cent-a-day fund showed a balance of $318; the United Thankoffering to date amounted to $1,262.60; the Leaflet subscriptions for the month were 1,926; fifty new members were added to the babies' branch.

An appeal was received from the Dominion Dorcas Secretary-Treasurer for help in rebuilding the school at Lac la Rouge, recently destroyed by fire. It was decided to leave this important appeal for response at the coming annual meeting.

Resolutions of sympathy with Mrs. Denton on the death of her mother; with Mrs. Watson and family on the death of her mother, and with Mrs. James Kennedy, on the death of her husband were carried by a standing vote.

Pringle, K.C., who was Paper Controller from the creation of that office until six weeks ago, appeared before the Board as counsel for one of the newsprint manufacturers.

Both Commissioner O'Connor and Commissioner Murdock questioned the ethics of Mr. Pringle's in appearing in that capacity under the circumstances, and after a lengthy argument, Mr. Pringle withdrew.

WESLEY MEN

Hold a Most Enjoyable Social Evening.

The pastor's cabinet of Wesley Methodist Church, tendered a complimentary banquet to the men of the church. Three hundred and thirty invitations were issued, but owing to the prevalent illness and prior engagement many of the invited were not present. After a fine supper during which Mr. Bruce Carey in his inimitable manner, conducted community singing, the speaker of the evening, Dr. Holbrook, of the Sanatorium, was introduced. His subject was the "Relation of the Church to the Community," and how best to reach the many who are non-church goers. Many and interesting were the facts and incidents illustrating the co-operation which exists between religion and medicine. Mr. Chas. Kemp and Mr. Stanley Addison were the soloists and rendered some splendid songs to the delight of all. Incidental addresses were given by Messrs. Robinson, Giles, Faulknor, Kent, Cooper, Carey and Rev. Mr. Sinclair. No one was more heartily greeted than the veteran, Mr. Richard Butler. Some interesting and very unexpected pictures were thrown on the screen of persons present. The pastor, Dr. Dougall, presided. The outcome of the evening was the enthusiastic decision to organize a men's brotherhood. This not simply for social pleasure, and cultivation of the church spirit, but for practical Christian service.

Several members of Mr. Gordon's divisional staffs will also be transferred to London, and it is believed Mr. Gordon will be sent there himself.

It was further stated that the local division and offices will be abolished. This was not taken to mean, however, that the freight sheds and offices would be closed, but rather just the divisional traffic departments.

OXFORD WON.

Beat Carleton in Stock Judging Contest.

Toronto, March 6.—The Oxford County team of young farmers won the provincial stock judging contest yesterday in the final test with the team from Carleton County. The Oxford team, which is composed of Burns McCorquodale, John Blair and Max Butcher, of Embro, had a total score of 2,222, or 275 points more than the Carleton team, made up of Echlin Croskerry, Lloyd Armstrong and E. Armstrong, of Kinburn. McCorquodale was high man, with 760 points out of a possible 1,000, and just three points below him.

The contest, which is staged annually by the Department of Agriculture, is waged for a trophy donated by the Union Stock Yards and the abattoirs, which becomes the property of the team winning it three times. So far no team has succeeded in repeating. The two teams were picked from among others in the earlier competitions, one at Guelph for the Western half of Ontario, and the other at Ottawa for the Eastern counties.

The Oxford team had the edge upon its opponents in each class except that of sheep. Their margin on dairy cattle was particularly big.

DUCHESS' GOLF CUP IS FOUND

The Emblem of Canadian Ladies' Championship

And Missing for Nearly Six Years.

(Canadian Press Wire.)

Montreal, March 6.—This is the story of a long lost gold cup:

In January, 1914, her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught, patroness at that time of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union, decided to present a cup for the Canadian Ladies' Championship, to be known as the Duchess of Connaught Championship Cup. The cup was to become the property of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, and to be the perpetual championship trophy to be competed for annually at the ladies' annual meeting. Then came the war, and the ladies' championship of Canada, like all other championships throughout the Empire, was cancelled for five years.

Last September the event was revived most successfully at Beaconsfield, and was won by Miss Ada McKenzie, of Missisauga, Toronto. But no trace of the Duchess' cup could be found by the officials of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, although anxious search was made high and low. In the meantihe, Her Royal Highness had died, and nearly all the members of her staff who might have known of its whereabouts, had paid the supreme sacrifice in France.

Mr. Arthur F. Sladen, the private secretary of the Governor-General, who had taken up the enquiry last October, had given up the quest as hopeless, when, early this week, he discovered the much sought for cup, safely reposing in the vaults of an Ottawa jeweler, where it had been for over six years, and has forwarded it to Mr. James L. McCulloch, honorable secretary of the Royal Canadian Association, Montreal. So Miss MacKenzie, lady champion of Canada, will after all have the honor of being the first holder of the valued trophy and will also have her name inscribed on it as the first winner.

Amsterdam Diamond Mart

The big market in Amsterdam, where diamonds worth fabulous sums are bought and sold daily in the same manner that stocks, bonds, cotton and grain are dealt in on any other exchange, is celebrating its silver jubilee. This official function should really have taken place in 1914, but was postponed. To commemorate the thirtieth anniversary of the exchange directors will publish a handsome memorial.

The stock of this important organization which establishes the prices of the world's diamonds is as fascinating as the history of either the London or New York Stock Exchange. In thirty years it has grown from a small group of dealers assembled in a cafe to the largest association of diamond merchants in the world, transacting their business in a magnificent building. Before the war Antwerp had the second largest diamond exchange in the world, and business in cut diamonds in that city was even larger than in Amsterdam. When Antwerp was captured by the Germans, however, the diamond merchants fled to Amsterdam.

About half a century ago the diamond market in Amsterdam was an irregular affair, with no organization and no rules. Merchants used to gather daily in the Cafe Rembrandt on Rembrandt Square. It was easy for crooks and shady characters to mix with the merchants, and swindles and robberies were frequent. These vicious elements brought the open diamond market into such disrepute that the owner of the Cafe Rembrandt refused to permit the dealers to hold their meetings in his establishment.

This was taken as an unwarranted slur on the diamond trade, and in 1889 bona fide merchants organized a regular exchange under the name of Beurs voor den Diamanthandel. This new body held its meetings at the Geelvinck. The membership soon grew to about 300, and in 1890 the corporation rented the Casino building on Waterloo Square, which remained the home of the diamond merchants until May, 1911. In 1906, when the membership had grown to 1,000, the organization voted to erect its own building. After having failed to purchase from the Government the historical old arsenal on Waterloo Square, the directors bought a site on the Weesperplein and the Achtergracht, where a building was erected.

The cornerstone was laid on December 12 1910, by the Burgomaster of Amsterdam; and the new exchange was officially opened by Minister Talmo on September 18, 1911. The building of the exchange was made possible largely by the assistance of the Incasso Bank, which assumed certain financial obligations on condition that it should have the right to open a branch office in the building. For the accommodation of the diamond merchants a branch post office is maintained, and as Sunday trading in diamonds is extensive it is kept open for that day.

The safety vaults of the exchange are the largest in the city. They contain about 1,000 deposit boxes. A diamond merchant finds a safety deposit box indispensable to his calling.

As the Dutch believe in combining business with pleasure, the diamond exchange has a billiard room and a well appointed restaurant, in addition to its numerous offices and assembly halls.

The diamond exchange now has about 1,500 members, all of whom are men of the highest integrity. The rules and regulations conerning membership are strict, and the by-laws, designed to prevent sharp practices in the trade, are severe. This is a matter of necessity, as the diamond trade depends upon confidence. It is not a trade that can be carried on by means of samples. Precious stones must actually pass from hand to hand on the exchange and unprincipled persons would find numerous opportunities for dishonesty.

Brokers are sometimes entrusted with large parcels of valuable stones and the temptations are great. Yet in the history of the exchange breaches of trust have been rare. All parties interested in the diamond trade are members of the exchange, so that an offender against the rules who forfeits his membership cannot pursue the trade.

All trade disputes are submitted to the arbitration committee, which is an important organ of the exchange, so that these quarrels rarely find their way into the courts.

Members are divided into two classes, merchant members and brokers and commission men. To be admitted as a merchant member the candidate must have been in the trade at least one year. A broker must have a three years' record. Foreign merchants and brokers may be admitted as visitors when introduced by a member, who is responsible for them. Foreigners visiting the exchange regularly may be admitted as foreign members. Sons and apprentices of members, young men 17 to 20 years of age, learning the trade under the tutelage of their fathers and guardians, are recognized as apprentices.

Several groups of members of the exchange have formed separate organizations, such as the Association of Diamond Merchants, and two associations of brokers and commission men, one of these dealing in rough diamonds and another dealing in cut stones. These associations are distinct from the parent body.

THE CATTALO.

Cross Between Bison and Cattle Looks Good.

Montreal, March 5.—Maxwell Graham, Director of Park Animals, who is in charge of an exhibition of buffalo robes and heads, stated this morning at the office of the Canadian Fur Auction Sales Company that a new animal had been created, called "cattalo," by cross-breeding buffalo and common cattle. This new breed retains much of the hardiness of the bison and is inured to facing driving storms. It has a coat of shorter but glossier hair than the buffalo, and, in the opinion of many, makes a more beautiful robe. In size, the cattalo is larger than either of its parents. When used for food it furnishes many good cuts. So far great success has attended the Government's experiment in the cross-breeding of buffalo and cattle and its efforts will be carried still further. The Departments of the Interior and of Agriculture are making the experiments.

101,940 IMMIGRANTS

To Canada in 10 Months of Fiscal Year.

(Canadian Press Wire.)

Ottawa, March 6.—Immigration to Canada during the first six months of the fiscal year, which ends March 31, totalled 101,940, an increase of 14 per cent. as compared with the corresponding period of the fiscal year 1918-19, the report of which was tabled in the House of Commons a few days ago. British immigration shows an increase in those ten months of 898 per cent., as compared with the same time in 1918-19, the figures being 52,918 and 5,302.

From the United States the increase was 35 per cent.

CUSTOMS BOOMS.

$12,000,000 Ahead for 11 Months Term.

(Canadian Press Wire.)

Ottawa, March 6.—Canada's customs revenue for eleven months of the present fiscal year, which ends March 31, is 12 millions ahead of the corresponding period of the previous year. The latest returns of the Finance Department show customs receipts for the past eleven months of $147,112,000, and for the same period of the previous year they were $134,-832,000.

For February alone the increase was more than three millions above February, 1919.

Toronto, March 6.—Laughing and joking as if they were having a good time John J. White, of Hamilton, Alfred La-Ferrier, John B. Butler and Arley Smith pleaded guilty at yesterday's Police Court to several charges of robbery, and they appeared to be equally happy as they went below to await sentence on Thursday next. ## HAMILTONIAN TESTIFIES AT KAPUSKASING

How Late Government Paid Settlers for "Movie" Pictures.

BROKEN PROMISES

Some Witnesses, Though, Told of Making Successes.

Kapuskasing, Ont., March 5.— The attempts of late of the Ontario Government to popularize the Kapusking colony by means of moving pictures were related here to-day before the Government inquiry. A settler named Boyce said a movie operator was sent to the colony shortly after it had been opened.

"The Government," said Boyce, "sent a man with a moving picture machine to the colony. The settlers were gathered and were instructed to walk in and out of the laundry and the store while the operator took pictures of us and our children. We smiled, for we were being paid for it, and it continued for two days.

"When I went back to my cabin and was doing some work, I suddenly noticed the noise of what seemed to me a machine gun sticking through the window. I jumped and the movie operator came back with a cheerful reply, telling me to look sharp as I was hiding my mother-in-law's pictures on the wall."

"I knew the chap," interrupted Professor Sharp, when Chairman Nickle wanted to know if he was really a Government employee. "His name is Shields, and he has done other work for the Government."

Boyce then stated that the next stunt which the operator pulled off before he left was when Mr. Mundy, who represented New York pulp interests, was in the colony with Government officials. The settlers were told to gather to listen to the plans of the New York financiers.

"Naturally, all came to the colony," said Boyce. "Mr. Mundy told us of the patriotism of the United States and the large number of German ships interned in New York harbor. He promised us the pulp mill, and while we were cheering, the movie operator took us wreathed in smiles."

STORY OF BROKEN PROMISES.

Boyce, who was formerly employed by the Oliver Plow Company, Hamilton, and who was one of the original settlers told of the broken promises to the settlers.

"We were told that it was a farm proposition and that we would be employed at current wages until we would be self-sustaining. We were told that it was the intention of the Department to settle 400 men on nine miles. The scheme has been abandoned. Mr. Gregg told us in an address in October, 1917, that it would have to be abandoned because it was too costly," said Boyce.

"He said it would have been cheaper for the Department to have given each man $300. Grigg's opinion was that the scheme would not be a success."

MR. FERGUSON DOUBTFUL.

Boyce declared that Mr. Grigg, in the address, stated that he could have settled the whole district within a few months with French-Canadians, and that he emphasized the fact that French-Canadians were not wanted. Then in the fall of the same year Hon. Howard Ferguson and the late Hon. Frank Cochrane paid a visit to the colony. "Hon. Mr. Ferguson seemed to be troubled and asked us to understand that the scheme was opened by him against his wishes, and that he had been convinced into it by Hon. Mr. Cochrane," said Boyce.

Boyce estimated the expense of the colony to date at $800,000. He had difficulty in clearing his land and in the late fall obtained a promise from Col. Innes that his contract would be renewed the next spring. Superintendent Sheppard then came to the colony and refused to abide by the agreement which Col. Innes had entered into. "The land was then cleared under the group system at a cost of $700 an acre, as compared with his contract price of $100 an acre. Boyce said that he and his family of five had often worked until one o'clock in the morning to clear his land. This winter he made a written application for a job in the colony, but found that it had been filled by a son of Superintendent Sheppard, who had not been a settler or a soldier.

HE MADE A SUCCESS.

Thomas Poolton is in a better position financially since coming to the colony two and one-half years ago than any of the other settlers who have appeared before the Commission. He has, however, been on the Government payroll during this time as an employee and while ill for two months received his wages. Poolton has a $1,000 Victory bond and $600 cash in bank.

"I cleared my own farm. I had $450 plus a gratuity of $500 when I came to the camp, which I have not put into the scheme. I am better off financially and one hundred per cent. better in health since I came to the camp," said Poolton, who told the Commission that he cleared his land by night and worked for the Government by day. His crops were put in at night. He said that he had seen worse frost in Old Ontario.

IS WILLING TO STAY.

John Wing, a member of the Princess Pats, located two miles from the station, stated that he obtained a good crop of roots in 1919 which were not affected by frosts. He believed that one thing essential to the success of the scheme was teaching the settlers to underdrain the land. Tiles should be put in by the Government. "I told Col. Carmichael, when he came to see me, that the only thing we could do was to wait and see. We can't have more loans at five or six per cent. That is certain," said Wing. "The whole story is that there must be some other work for the settlers. So far, I have come out all right. I want to stay on and try things to the finish, and I might suggest that the Government provide us with free seed this year. We can't buy it at present prices."

LOST HIS LAND.

Daniel Cunningham, an original settler of July, 1917, charged gross mismanagement of the affairs of the colony, and demanded compensation for his land, which had been confiscated by the present superintendent, Edward Sheppard, after Cunningham had been fined for a breach of the O.T.A. He said the offence consisted of a little celebration in his own house, and claimed that having paid the penalty exacted by law she should have been allowed to go back to his place. He found, however, that Mr. Sheppard would not permit him in the colony. Mr. Grigg, Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests, in reply to his complaint, said that he was sorry it occurred, but he thought that Mr. Sheppard knew more of the situation. He believed that the reason why he was ordered away was because he owed the Government nothing and his one hundred acres had been cleared.

"Horses were dying of starvation in the colony during the winter of 1918. I knew of eight of them which died," declared Cunningham. "Hay was quoted at $26 a ton to the colony. While I was in the office one day I was asked if he knew where any could be got. I told them I could find it at $15 a ton at Matheson. The offer was never accepted."

Replying to Albert Morgan, President of the Grand Army of Canada post in the colony, Professor Sharp to-day said that the commission "knew that something would have to be done." Lieut.-Col. McLaren expressed the opinion that "the one thing which would clean this whole thing up was a pulp mill." The commission, however, was not given any indication yet of the solution of the problem.

"Some one has said in Toronto that we have got to stop this," said Lieut.-Col. McLaren. "Apparently the view is taken that too much money has already been spent on the colony. You admit that a man can't take enough off ten acres to keep himself and family. There must be an end somewhere to this thing."

FEARED WIFE WOULD GO INSANE

Chairman Nickle is much impressed with the evidence of settlers in Harty and Kitigan, and intends, in spite of the extreme weather now prevailing at the colony, to go to outlying settlements to obtain the viewpoint of the wives and daughters of these settlers. One of the men was forced to walk ten miles last night to his home through a blizzard because his wife was in a state of nervous prostration. It was her first winter in the colony, and this settler, Gould, feared that if he did not return he would find his wife demented. "She never sees a light at night and seldom meets a human being during the day," he said.

Made Her Feel Like A Different Person

WHY MRS. MILES WOOD RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

She had kidney troubles and her feet swelled but she states she found the relief she looked for in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Arden, Ont., March 5th.—(Special.)—"Dodd's Kidney Pills made me feel like a new person." That is the statement of Mrs. Miles Wood, a well-known and highly respected resident of this place.

"I was troubled with my kidneys," Mrs. Wood continues, "and my feet swelled. I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills with the result that the swelling is nearly all gone and I feel better in every way.

"To any person who is bothered with kidney trouble or with their feet and legs swelling I would say 'use Dodd's Kidney Pills.'"

The women of Canada have come to look on Dodd's Kidney Pills as a standard remedy for their kidney ills. They act directly on the kidneys. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy. By putting the kidneys in good condition to strain all the impurities, all the seeds of disease, out of their blood they carry good health to every part of the body. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not help all kidney ills.

CROSS-BENCHERS DEMAND AN EARLY ELECTION

The Finance Department Severely Criticised by Some Speakers.

KING CRITICISED

Dr. Clark Principal Speaker —Major Andrews On Cross-Benches.

Ottawa, March 5.—As if with one voice, all the members who participated in the debate on the Address in the Commons to-day gave expression to one sentiment: the holding of a general election immediately after the Franchise Bill is passed. Dr. Michael Clark, the eloquent free-trader from Red Deer, and lieutenant of Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the agrarian movement, was the principal speaker of the day, and he declared that he was convinced the electors wanted a chance to choose a new Parliament.

MAJOR ANDREWS' MOVE.

Major G. W. Andrews, Centre Winnipeg Unionist representatiev, was so fully convinced that his constituents desired an election that he announced that he would leave the ranks of the Government supporters and join the cross-benchers, and also vote for the Liberal amendment. This occasioned only mild surprise, as he occupied the cross-benches for a time last session, but this year was in the midst of the Government supporters. It will be recalled that he had the largest Unionist majority in the 1917 election. Thomas MacNutt, of Saltcoats, and Levi Thompson, two of the Farmer Party supporters, took part in the debate to-day. The former was inclined to vote against the amendment if definite assurance was given that the Government would bring in a Redistribution Bill on the new census before appealing to the country; otherwise he favored the amendment. He did not receive any such assurance.

QUESTIONS OF ECONOMY.

Dr. Michael Clark, of Red Deer, after congratulating Sir George Foster on his leadership, proceeded to discuss economic matters, and he desired some member of the Government to make clear how they expected to economize, and in what. The veterans could not be accused of extravagance, as "the best jobs were naturally held by those who did not avail themselves of the glorious privilege of going overseas, and those who came home had to take jobs at $65 and $70 a month." The working men and women could not economize, and, although the farmers were better off, they could not economize either.

"There is nothing left but the profiteers, and I would suggest to the Government, as I have done before, that, in dealing with the profiteers, it is not only a duty simply to teach economics, but to enforce it. The Government ought to enforce economy on the wealthy people in the country, and they have the means ready to their hand, for the wealthy people should contribute more money than they do," declared Dr. Clark.

REVENUE FROM THE RICH.

"Where shall we get the revenue?" he asked. "Take the revenue that the rich are wasting, if you are sincere in preaching economy; and production is, of course, important," he advised the Government. In order to sell it was necessary to buy. He referred Hon. Arthur Meighen to the advice of President Wilson, of the United States, that international trade would never be conducted on any other principle than that which he cited; also, that restriction of trade meant restriction of production. He was proud of the address of Hon. T. A. Crerar, the leader of what he stated the "National Progressive party."

The recent by-elections in which Farmer candidates were elected were not accidents. He agreed with those who said that it was wrong for any one class to rule permanently in this country.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association was of a union of men of a class, and he believed that nine-tenths of their activities were political, although not always in the open and on the platform.

Government Whip W. S. Middlebro wanted to know if Dr. Clark would desire to see the C. M. A. as an association put candidates in the field.

C. M. A. INTO POLITICS.

"The C. M. A. has always had candidates for this House. They have always had members in this House, retorted Dr. Clark, but he admitted he would not want to see them as an association represented in Parliament. "The C. M. A. and other interests have been in politics," he declared. "As to having candidates in the field, I very much fear that candidates of the old political parties have been much closer to those interests than Mr. Middlebro would like to admit. These classes are in politics, and continually in politics. No one on the other side of the House will deny it. If he did he would produce nothing but laughter in the House and outside of it. My point is that the activities that are at present showing in this country have been provoked by that which is wrong in the public life in Canada."

Canada had been only a nominally democratic country. Dr. Clark told Sir Henry Drayton that he would make a good Finance Minister if he would carefully forget all that his predecessor had done, and went in the opposite direction. Referring to Mr. Meighen's statement that for 125 years the United States had enjoyed protective tariffs, Dr. Clark said he preferred to think of conditions across the border as they are at present. He pointed out that when Wilson took office he gave a very large measure of free trade. "Our tariff is a monstrosity compared with the tariff of the United States," he said, adding that only 30 per cent. of the articles imported into that country were taxed. Boots and shoes and agricultural implements, in contrast with Canada, were admitted free.

MERELY AN ACCIDENT.

The speaker believed it was largely an accident that for the moment so many of those who supported the Canadian Council of Agriculture policy were farmers. "Farmers hold these views because in Canada they were hit so hard by the tariff that they had to study economics, and the result of the study of economics would be precisely the same among the workmen of the country, among the women of the country and of both front benches in Parliament if they had the same promptings to study that the farmers had."

Dr. Clark agreed that class activity in politics would be a curse to a country, but he did not quite understand why this cry should be raised now. For the first time in history certain classes were showing certain class-consciousness. One

HON. DR. CODY TO QUIT HOUSE

Ex-Minister of Education Out of Politics.

Can Serve No Purpose in Opposition.

Toronto, March 6.—Hon. Dr. Cody, Minister of Education in the Hearst Government, is quitting politics. His resignation will be handed in probably before the session opens next Tuesday. Hon. Dr. Cody has seen Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Leader of the Conservative party in Ontario, and his resignation has simply to pass the formal stages.

This will leave "A" seat, Northeast Toronto, without a representative in the Legislature for at least a part of the coming session or until writs can be issued for a by-election.

Hon. Dr. Cody has no political ambitions. Since the defeat of the Hearst Government he has hinted his intention of abandoning public life, although it was understood by those in close touch with him that he would remain for the session. He took public office to put into the department some reforms which he thought were required in the public school system of the Province. It was understood that he would not "mix up" politically. His one object was legislation as it affected education. The defeat of the Hearst Government and the appointment of another Minister of Education has taken from him the opportunity of securing the adoption of such legislation as he intended. Nothing remaining but political action in opposition, which does not appeal to him, he has decided to quit the political arena.

Dr. Cody was called into the Hearst Cabinet in 1918 in charge of the Department of Education, and continued in that capacity until the Government resigned after its defeat in the elections. He was one of the few members of the Cabinet to survive the election in their own constituencies and was elected by acclamation. During 1918 he toured Britain and France on educational matters.

The rank and file of the Conservative party regarded him as a source of strength during the coming session. In the allotment of seats he was placed next the Acting Leader, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and was looked upon as "second mate" of the party.

He sat but one session in the House following his by-election in Seat "A," Northeast Toronto, after Hon. Dr. Pyne had resigned the seat. He also succeeded Hon. Dr. Pyne in the Government as head of the Education Department.

In case of a by-election the Conservatives have the best chance in Northeast Toronto. It is a Tory "stronghold." However, Labor may try to add to its strength in the Legislature and put in a candidate.

MUNICIPAL HOUSING PLAN BIG SUCCESS

More Than 1,000 Homes Were Erected During Past Year.

NEED $8,000,000

To Meet the Demands of Ontario Municipalities.

Toronto, March 6.—The development of municipal housing, encouraged by Government loans at low interest rates, is strikingly shown by the report just issued by J. A. Ellis, who, as director of the Bureau of Municipal Affairs, has had charge of the carrying out of the Ontario Government's policy. Whether the Drury Government decides to "carry on" or not with the housing scheme, the record shows that if the plan has not solved the housing problem, it has

When the Province set out upon its programme of assisting municipalities through loans, it had available $8,753,291 provided by the Dominion Government, and $2,000,000, which the Government had previously pledged itself to set aside. Of this there was appropriated to municapities during 1919 $10,629,000 or all but $124,291. Of the total appropriated $5,125,000 was for 17 cities, $3,649,000 for 39 towns, $735,000 for 16 villages and $1,120,000 was apportioned among 11 townships. Two cities, 10 towns, one village and one township which came under the Act within a comparatively recent period have had no appropriation.

$8,00,000 MORE NEEDED.

"If all the requirements of the various municipalities for 1920 are met, about $8,000,000 more will have to be appropriated in addition to the $10,629,000 already appropriated," says the Director in his report. "A large number of municipalities which have constructed a small number of houses this year are contemplating large developments in 1920, in addition to those constructed in 1919, if sufficient appropriations are made.

The fact that many of the municipalities just got nicely started upon their housing programmes last year accounts for the fact that the actual amounts loaned to date fall far short of the amount appropriated. During 1919 approved loans for houses erected amounted to $3,677,947 and of this $2,807,721 was paid by the Government.

The record shows that during 1919 there was 1,184 houses erected and of these over 800 were six-roomed houses, only 144 houses having more than six rooms. More houses of solid construction—brick, hollow tile, or concrete—were erected than of any other type, with clapboard houses second and brick veneer third. All but 124 houses were detached.

One of the chief criticisms of the present housing plan was that the moment municipalities began operations, land values would jump to prohibitive heights. This fear seems to have had little basis, though possibly the authority given under the Act to expropriate may have had a salutory effect. A statement of the cost of 659 lots bought in over a score of municipalities shown that the lots averaged $377 each, or approximately $10 per foot frontage. Sudbury was the only centre where more than $500 was paid for a lot. These purchases included several in cities such as London, Brantford, Guelph, and St. Catharines.

HOW COSTS HAVE MOUNTED.

In his report, Mr. Ellis comments upon the increase in the cost of construction since the act was passed, an increase which, because of the fixed amount that may be loaned limits the benefit intended to be given. This has given rise in some quarters to the suggestion that the present loan limit should be raised to meet the increasing cost of building.

"The cost of increasing houses is now, taking an average all over the Province, about 125 per cent. greater than it was before the war," says Mr. Ellis, speaking of conditions as they existed at the close of 1919. "Lumber has so greatly increased in price here that we have arrived at the stage where the cost of erection of a house of solid brick is not a great deal in excess of one of frame construction. As to the advisability of building a house of solid construction rather than frame, from the point of view of durability and saving in maintenance there is no longer any doubt. Considering these matters, I recommend the erection of houses of solid construction, especially where the comparatively small additional increase in monthly payments over those of frame construction, can be readily met by the person requiring the house."

PROVINCE NEEDS 20,000 HOUSES.

Mr. Ellis, speaking of the present house shortage in the Province, estimates it at least 20,000 houses.

The report contains a report from James Govan, chief architect to the Bureau, who suggests a number of ways in which house construction can be improved and costs kept down. A still more interesting feature is the section devoted to house and sub-division plans. There are over two score of floor plans and erection showing various types of small houses, and the subdivision plans show the influence the Bureau has been able to exert in this direction of civic betterment. Several of the plans for large groups of houses, as originally submitted to the architects of the Bureau, provided for stright streets, with every lot like its neighbor. The amended plans under which operations are now being carried on are featured by curving thoroughfares, with small "park" areas, etc., that take advantage of all national advantages, on the locations without reducing the number of lots available.

CANADIAN CLUB

Sir Bertram Windle, a Very Noted Speaker.

The visit of Sir Bertram Windle to Hamilton has awakened great interest. He speaks at the Canadian Club luncheon on Monday evening, at the Royal Connaught Hotel, and special arrangements are being made to take care of the large gathering that will greet the distinguished guest of the club.

Sir Bertram Windle was born in England in 1858, his father being then Vicar of Mayfield, Staffs. His mother was an Irishwoman, and a daughter of Charles Kendal Bushe, Lord Chief Justice of Ireland, who sat in the last Irish Parliament, and is described in the list of members published by Sir Jonah Barrington as "Incorruptible," an honorable term applied to only one other member. Sir Bertram was educated at Kingston School, near Dublin, Repton School, in Derbyshire, and Trinity College, Dublin, from which he holds the degree of M. A., M. D., D.Sc.

He left Ireland in 1882 to take up a position in Birmingham, and was received into the Catholic Church in 1883. He was professor of anatomy and dean of the faculty of medicine in Birmington before and after the constitution of the university, in the formation of which he took a large part. Whilst there he was also a member of the school board and of the consultative committee of the board of education, and was at various times examiner in anatomy in the Universities of Cambridge, Aberdeen, Glasgow, Durham, and for the Royal College of Physicians, London, and Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland. He was made a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1900, and is LL.D. of the University of Birmingham and the Royal University of Ireland. He has been President of University College, Cork, since 1904—a position which he has now resigned—and has been a Commissioner of Intermediate Education and a Commissioner under the Irish Universities Act of 1908. He was knighted in 1912 and received the Order of St. Gregory the Great from the Pope in 1909. He established the first course for a Degree in Journalism in the British Isles in Cork, and was the suggester of the Irish Trade Mark. He is the author of a large number of books and papers, including the "Proportions of the Human Body," "Shakespeare's County," "The Wessex of Thomas Hardy," a "History of Chester," "Remains of the Prehistoric Age," "The Church and Science," and "Vitalism and Scholasticism."

He was a member of the Irish Convention, and is at present lecturing at St. Michael's College, Toronto.

U.F.O.-LABOR MEMBERS IN JOINT CAUCUS

Hear Explanation of Programme of Legislation.

LIQUOR POLICY

Gov't. is Expected to Ask Ottawa for Referendum.

Toronto, March 6.—Farmer and Labor members of the Legislature met in the first joint caucus since the formation of the Government, yesterday afternoon, at the Parliament Buildings. Caucuses were held previous to the formation of the Government where both parties attended, but since that time the two groups have held their own meetings and discussed their affairs separately. Practically all the members "on the Government side" attended. Sergt.-Major McNamara, member for Riverdale, was absent on account of illness.

"It was simply a get-together meeting to give the Ministers a chance to tell what legislation they proposed to bring before the session opening next week," explained one of the Cabinet.

"We want the members to know what is coming up, so they can think about it and then be able to proceed intelligently on it," he continued. "We believe that private members should know what the Government is going to do without its being sprung on them at a few hours' notice."

It will be noted that Premier Drury, in his address at London, said that the rank and file should take its place without being "whipped" into line. Yesterday's meeting was a start in that direction, although it went under the name of "caucus." Private members heard the Ministers and now know what to expect in the line of legislation and the reasons for its introduction when the House opens. All the Ministers of the Cabinet attended, and each spoke.

Premier Drury said there would be no statement. Much of the legislation has been reviewed before.

There is nothing of a very contentious nature to be expected. Labor will have several bills. The eight-hour day will get no farther than the appointment of a Commission to investigate its applicability, and make suggestions as to how it should be brought about. The actual passing of such legislation, if it is to be passed, will be left for future sessions. The minimum wage will be brought up. Hon. F. C. Biggs has told what may be expected in the roads policy, which, judging from the interest shown in every corner of the Province, is about as interesting to the people as any Government work at the present time.

The "liquor" legislation has not been made public yet, except that the O.T.A. will not be changed in its clause regarding importation. It is expected, however, that the Government will announce that it will apply to the Dominion Government for a referendum on this question. Minor changes for the better enforcement of the O.T.A. are likely. Some discussion took place on this matter.

There will probably be some announcement later as to the housing question and what assistance, if any, the Government will give to municipalities. Hydro matters are more or less in abeyance until the return of Sir Adam Beck.

Bills that are likely to be submitted to the House include some for the following purposes:

To increase succession duties.

To adopt municipal lists in place of enumeration for Provincial elections.

To provide for a new system of fire-ranging.

To amend the O.T.A. so as to strengthen its enforcement provisions.

JAPAN SUPPLIES SUGAR TO EUROPE

Berlin, March 5.— Japan has succeeded in delivering forty million pounds of refined cane sugar to European ports in the last few months, according to the Allegmein Zeitung, which declares the feat one which formerly was believed impossible of accomplishment. Most of the sugar comes from a Java refinery, the newspaper says.

OUT-TRICKED

The sleeping man moved in his chair and half turned. The vicomte, his patience exhausted, snatched the bonnet from his head, and threw it on the ground. "Will you listen?" he said. "Or go, if you choose look for another master. I am ruined! Do you hear? Ruined, Gil. I have lost all— money, land, Lusigny itself, at the dice!"

The man, aroused at last, stooped with a lazy movement, and picking up his hat dusted it with his hand, and rose with a yawn to his feet.

"I am afraid, viscomte," he said, his tones, quiet as they were, sounding like thunder in the vicomte's astonished and bewildered ears, "I am afraid that if you have lost Lusigny, you have lost something which was not yours to lose!"

As he spoke, he struck the embers with his foot, and the fire, blazing up, shone on his face. The viscomte saw, with unutterable confusion and dismay, that the man before him was not Gil at all, but the last person in the world to whom he should have betrayed himself. The astute smiling eyes, the aquiline nose, the high forehead, and projecting chin, which the short beard and mustache scarcely concealed, were only too well known to him. He stepped back with a cry of horror. "Sir!" he said, and then his tongue failed him. He stood silent, pale, convicted, his chin on his breast. The man to whom he had confessed his treachery was the master whom he had conspired to betray.

"I had suspected something of this," Henry of Navarre continued, after a pause, a tinge of irony in his tone. "Rosny told me that the old fox, the Captain of Creance, was affecting your company a good deal, M. le Vicomte, and I find that, as usual, his suspicions were well founded. What with a gentleman who shall be nameless, who has bartered a ford and a castle for the favor of Mlle. de Luynes, and yourself, I am blest with some faithful followers! For shame!" he continued, seating himself with dignity, "have you nothing to say for yourself?"

The young noble stood with his head bowed, his face white. This was ruin, indeed, absolutely irremediable. "Sire," he said at last, "your Majesty has a right to my life, not to my honor."

"Your honor!" quoth Henry, biting contempt in his tone.

The young man started, and for a second his cheek flamed under the well-deserved reproach; but he recovered himself. "My debt to your Majesty," he said "I am willing to pay."

"Since pay you must," Henry muttered softly.

"But I claim to pay also my debt to the Captain of Creance."

"Oh," the king answered. "So you would have me take your worthless life, and give up Lusigny?"

"I am in your hands, sire."

"Pish, sir!" Henry replied in angry astonishment. "You talk like a child Such an offer, M. de Lanthenon, is folly, and you know it. Now listen to me. It was lucky for you that I came in to-night, intending to question you. Your madness is known to me only, and I am willing to overlook it. Do you hear? Cheer up, therefore, and be a man. You are young; I forgive you. This shall be between you and me only," the young prince continued, his eyes softening as the other's head drooped, "and you need think no more of it until the day when I shall say to you, 'Now, M. de Lanthenon, for France and for Henry, strike!' "

He rose as the last word passed his lips, and held out his hand. The vicomte fell on one knee, and kissed it reverently, then sprang to his feet again. "Sire," he said, standing erect, his eyes shining, "you have punished me heavily, more heavily than was needful. There is only one way in which I can show my gratitude, and that is by ridding you of a servant who can never again look your enemies in the face."

"What new folly is this?" said Henry sternly. "Do you not understand that I have forgiven you?"

"Therefore I cannot give up Lusigny, and I must acquit myself of my debt to the Captain of Creance in the only way which remains," replied the young man, firmly. "Death is not so hard that I would not meet it twice over rather than again betray my trust."

"This is midsummer madness!" said the king hotly.

"Possibly," replied the vicomte, without emotion; "yet of a kind to which your Majesty is not altogether a stranger."

The words appealed strongly to that love of the chivalrous which formed part of the king's nature, and was one cause alike of his weakness and his strength, which in its more extravagant flights gave opportunity after opportunity to his enemies, in its nobler and saner expressions won victories which all his astuteness and diplomacy could not have compassed. He stood looking with half-hidden admiration at the man whom two minutes before he had despised.

"I think you are in jest," he said presently.

"No, sire," the young man answered gravely. "In my country they have a proverb about us. 'The Lanthenons,' say they, 'have ever been bad players, but good payers.' I will not be the first to be worse than my name!"

He spoke with so quiet a determination that the king was staggered, and for a minute or two paced the room in silence, inwardly reviling the generous obstinacy of his weak-kneed supporter, yet unable to withhold his admiration from it. At length he stopped with a low, abrupt exclamation.

"Wait!" he cried. "I have it! Ventre Saint Gris, man, I have it!" His eyes sparkled, and, with a gentle laugh, he hit the table a sounding blow. "Ha! ha! I have it!" he repeated joyously.

The young noble gazed at him in surprise, half sullen, half incredulous. But when Henry, in low, rapid tones, had expounded his plan, the vicomte's face underwent a change. Hope and life sprang into it. The blood flew to his cheeks. His whole aspect softened. In a moment he was on his knee, mumbling the king's hand, his eyes full of joy and gratitude. After that the two talked long, the murmur of their voices broken more than once by the ripple of low laughter. When they at length separated, and Henry, his face hidden by the folds of his cloak, had stolen away to his lodgings, where, no doubt, more than one watcher was awaiting him with a mind full of anxious fears, the vicomte threw open his window and looked out on the night. The moon had set, but the stars still shone peacefully in the dark canopy above. He remembered on a sudden, his throat choking with silent repressed emotion—the stiff gray pile among the beech woods of Navarre which had been in his family since the days of St. Louis, and which he had so lightly risked. And he registered a vow in his heart that of all Henry's servants he would henceforth be the most faithful.

Meanwhile the Captain of Creance was enjoying the sweets of coming triumph. He did not look out into the night, it is true, but pacing up and down the room he planned and calculated, considering how he might make the most of his success. He was still comparatively young. He had years of strength before him. He would rise. He would not easily be satisfied. The times were troubled, opportunities many, fools many; bold men with brains and hands few.

At the same time he knew that he could be sure of nothing until Lusigny was actually his, and he spent the next few days in considerable suspense. But no hitch occurred. The vicomte made the necessary communications to him; and men in his own pay informed him of dispositions ordered by the Governor of Lusigny which left him in no doubt that the loser intended to pay his debt.

It was, therefore, with a heart already gay with anticipation that the Captain rode out of Creance two hours before midnight on an evening eight days later. The night was dark, but he knew the road well. He had with him a powerful force, composed in part of thirty of his own garrison, bold, hardy fellows, and in part of six score horsemen, lent him by the Governor of Montauban. As the vicomte had undertaken to withdraw, under some pretense or other, one-half of his command, and to have one of the gates opened by a trusty hand, the captain trotted along in excellent spirits, and stopped to scan with approval the dark line of his troopers as they plodded past him, the jingle of their swords and corselets ringing sweet music in his ears. He looked for an easy victory; but it was not any slight misadventure that would rob him of his prey. As his company wound on by the river-side, their accoutrements reflected in the stream or passed into the black shadow of the olive grove which stands a mile to the east of Lusigny, he felt little doubt of the success of his enterprise.

Treachery apart that is; and of treachery there was no sign. The troopers had scarcely halted under the last clump of trees before a figure detached itself from one of the largest trunks, and advanced to their leader's rein. The captain saw with surprise that it was the vicomte himself. For a second he thought something had gone wrong, but the young noble's first words reassured him. "It is all right," M. de Lanthenon whispered, as the captain bent down to him. "I have kept my word, and I think that there will be no resistance. The planks for crossing the moat lie opposite the gate. Knock thrice at the latter, and it will be opened. There are not fifty armed men in the place."

"Good!" the captain answered, in the same cautious tone. "But you—"

"I am believed to be elsewhere, and must be gone. I have far to ride tonight. Farewell."

"Till we meet again," the captain answered, and with that his ally glided away and was lost in the darkness. A cautious word set the troop again in motion, and a very few minutes saw them standing on the edge of the moat, the outline of the gateway tower looming above them, a shade darker than the wrack of clouds which overhead raced silently across the sky. A moment of suspense, while one and another shivered—for there is that in a night attack which touches the nerves of the stoutest—and the planks were found, and as quietly as possible laid across the moat. This was so successfully done that it evoked no challenge, and the captain crossing quickly with some picked men, stood almost in the twinkling of an eye under the shadow the gateway. Still no sound was heard save the hurried breathing of those at his elbow or the stealthy tread of others crossing. Cautiously he knocked thre times and waited. The third rap had scarcely sounded, however, before the gate rolled silently open, and he sprang in, followed by his men.

So far so good. A glance at the empty street and the porter's pale face told him at once that the vicomte had kept his word. But he was too old a soldier to take anything for granted, and forming up his men as quickly as they entered he allowed no one to advance until all were inside, and then, his trumpet sounding a wild note of defiance, his force sprang forward in two compact bodies, and in a moment the town awoke to find itself in the hands of the enemy.

As the vicomte had promised, there was no resistance. In the small keep a score of men did indeed run to arms, but only to lay them down without striking a blow when they became aware of the force opposed to them. Their leader, sullenly acquiescing, gave up his sword and the keys of the town to the victorious captain, who, as he sat his horse in the middle of the market-place, giving his orders and sending off riders with the news, alerady saw himself in fancy governor of a province and Knight of the Holy Ghost.

As the red light of the torches fell on steel caps and polished hauberks, on the serried ranks of pikemen, and the circle of white-faced townsmen, picturesque old square looked doubly picturesque. Every five minutes, with a clatter of iron on the rough pavement and a shower of sparks, a horseman sprang away to tell the news at Montauban or Cahorst, and every time that this occurred, the captain, astride on his charger, felt a new sense of power and triumph.

Suddenly the low murmur of voices were broken by a new sound, the hurried clang of hoofs, not departing but arriving. There was something in the noise which made the captain prick his ears, and secured for the messenger a speedy passage through the crowd. Even at that the man did not spare his horse, but spurring to the captain's side, then and then only sprang to the ground. His right arm was bound up in blood-stained cloths. With an oath of amazement, the captain recognized the officer whom he had left in charge of Creance, and thundered out, "What is it?"

"They have got Creance," the man gasped, reeling as he spoke. "They have got Creance!"

"Who?" the captain shrieked, his face purple with rage.

"The little man of Bearn! He assaulted it five hundred strong an hour after you left, and had the gate down before we could fire a dozen shots. We did what we could, but we were but one to seven. I swear, captain, we did all we could. Look at this!"

Almost black in the face, the captain swore another frightful oath. It was not only that he saw governorship and honors vanish like will-o'-the-wisps, but that he saw even more quickly that he had made himself the laughing stock of a kingdom! And he had. To this day among the stories which the southern French love to tell of the prowess and astuteness of the great Henry, there is none more frequently told, or more frequently laughed over, than that of the famous exchange of Creance for Lusigny.

MARCH WEATHER DANGEROUS TO BABY

Our Canadian March weather—one day bright, but sloppy, the next blustery and cold—is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mothers to keep the little ones indoors. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds, which rack their whole system. To guard against these colds and to keep the baby well till the better, brighter days come along, a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels and thus they relieve colds and simple fevers and keep the baby fit. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FOUR HUNDRED AND SIXTY-THIRD CHAPTER.

THE SECRET CHAMBER IS A SOURCE OF WONDERMENT TO GENE ARCHER.

I think that I never expected my husband and Chrys and Jordan Spence to come aboard the yacht that day, but I talked as if I did while Daddy walked the deck with me. And I wondered why human beings pretend so to each other in times of terrible anxiety. Nobody is ever much deceived by attempts to bolster up a body's courage. Perhaps in trying to blind others to a great trouble, one best comforts oneself; perhaps by assuming that our friends would join us. I stifled the secret forebodying that they would not.

Gene Archer, wrapped in steamer rugs, was brought on deck in a hooded chair. He was well enough to talk, Dr. Travers said, and so, at last, we had an opportunity to discuss the curious events of that terrible week we had spent at the hacienda.

Of course I was wild to question Archer and very naturally my first query was about the manner in which he and the others had so suddenly disappeared from the secret chamber.

I described my remarkable descent in the shaft and explained to Archer that every one of the valiant blows he and Spence had intended for my rescue had in reality driven me farther and farther from it.

"Chance certainly worked in a fortunate disguise that day," I concluded. "You sent me straight down to rescue Bob—to save my husband from death!"

Then Archer had to have that long story.

"May Bob's luck hold!" he said solemnly, and then, as if his seriousness implied too much, he added carelessly:

"Some day I'm going back there and find out how those architectural tricks work. I must hand it to those old Spanish masons—they were some extraordinary chaps!"

"Marvellous concrete they used, too," said Daddy. "Just think how the walls have stood severe earthquakes! There must have been hundreds of shakes since the original buildings were erected."

"I'm praying the secret chamber is still in existence, even though the old church has been destroyed as reported. I want to get a look at the inside of that room and that shaft again," said Archer, who always finds his profession the most interesting of all subjects of conversation.

"May your prayer be answered," I murmured. My voice trembled as I thought of the three precious lives which so recently had been at stake in the mysterious room.

Daddy Lorimer doesn't like sentimentality. He put a steadying hand on mine, then turned to Archer with:

"Go on with your story, Gene. What became of you after this little girl dropped down the shaft? She says that when she and Bob climbed out again, the secret chamber was absolutely empty!"

"Spence and I were vicious, Mrs. Lorimer, when your cry awakened us and we saw you vanishing behind the door in the paneling. I suppose we acted like crazy men, for we never stopped our desperate hammering until the door fell in. Then we leaned over the edge of the pit and looked into darkness—and heard nothing—"

That was true, thought I. The place was as still as a tomb, for Bob had touched me and was running his fingers over my face in the darkness—and I knew him—and was unafraid!

"Then a big draft struck us," Archer continued. "It indicated an open door behind us. Spence and I turned at the same instant—turned to face an empty room! Mr. Lorimer, your daughter had vanished. She had disappeared without making a sound! Of course we rushed to the opening in the wall, but we reached it only to fall into the clutches of four masked Mexicans. The rest of the experience, for us, wasn't unique. We had survived it before. We were gagged and bound and dumped into the tower room. There Bob and Mrs. Bob found us. But we never had any idea what became of Chrystobel Lorimer. And we felt responsible. Did she escape? Did she find a safe place to hide? Or was she dragged off by the same devils who got us?"

Controlling Airships.

For some time experiments have been carried out in various countries with the object of controlling aircraft from the ground, and a French machine succeeded recently — on a prescribed course with certain specified detours—in covering a distance of 180 kilometers (about 110 miles), and in landing, when required, at a certain airdome. A similar machine has been developed in the United States which, according to a recent statement of Secretary of War Baker, can travel without a pilot some 100 miles and land close to a designated post.

Each Century Ends With Blaze of War

It is at least a curious fact, however little real significance it may have, that regularly, since and including the close of the eleventh century, each cycle of a hundred years has been completed with a blaze of wars. In nearly every instance they were conflicts of importance and had a decided bearing on the woe or welfare of mankind.

They say history repeats itself, and if it does the twentieth century will be but following a precedent that is 800 years old should it, too, end amid the roar of cannon.

At the close of the tenth century there was comparative peace among the European peoples, or as near peace as ever existed in those troublous times. There were some minor struggles, to be sure, but they were rather in the way of organized brigandage than real warfare. A throne or two made up the booty for which the highwaymen contended, and the Danes were massacred in England in 1002, but otherwise the sunset of the old era and the dawn of the new were unaccompanied by storm. What vigorous warfare was carried on did not affect Europe, because it resulted from the first invasion of India by Mahmoud of Ghuzni in 1001.

But with the close of the eleventh century not only did the crusade begin, but Robert, Duke of Normandy, made war on his brother, Henry I, and invaded England, and so the last half decade of the eleventh century was signalled by strife that was hounded on the one hand by Jerausalem and on the other by London.

In 1195 a series of general wars began, with the successes of the Moors over Alfonso the Noble King of Castile, and the opening of that great strife which was to shake Europe, the struggle for supremacy between the Guelphs and the Ghibellines. Pope Innocent III, summoned Europe to a new crusade, and that added to the general uproar. A fourth crusade was inaugurated in 1201, and Philip Augustus wrested one French province after another from King John of England.

The war dance of the end of the thirteenth century began with an invasion of England by Philip the Fair and John Balliol, and the Scots under Wallace supplemented this with a dash of fighting on their own account.

The French invaded Flanders at the same time, 1297, and Albert of Austria, son of Rudolph of Hapsburg, took up arms for the dethronement of the German Emperor, Adolphus of Nassau. The Genoese did a little naval fighting with the Venetians, and Boniface VIII. had a successful bout with the Colonnas of Rome. In 1302 there was a rising in Flanders against the French and in the next year Edward I. completed his conquest of the Scotch. So the fourteenth century began noisily enough.

To jump forward to the end of that century we find the Turks and Hungarians fighting, and Ladislas fighting for Naples with Louis II. of Anjou Owen Glendower led a revolt of the Welsh, and the Percys defeated the Scots. Tamerlane defeated Bajazet, and all these troubles happened in the last four years of the fourteenth century and the first two of the fifteenth.

The sixteenth began quite as hopefully. Charles VII. conquered Naples and Ferdinand II. recovered it. Perkin Warbeck signalized the death of the old era in England by backing his pretensions to the throne with arms. The French conquered Milan and Maxmilian of Germany made war on the Swiss. Louis XII. conquered Naples, and so all Europe, practically.

The next century was near its beginning when Howard and Essex captured Cadiz. Maurice of Nassau also took a rap at the Spaniards, and Elizabeth sent Essex to Ireland to put down the insurrection under the Earl of Tyrone.

Sigismund Vasa was driven out of Sweden and the French invaded Savoy. Maurice of Nassau defeated Albert of Austria, and so again we find Europe warring from Ireland to Sweden and south of Austria.

At the close of the seventeenth century there was a particularly warm time. Villeroi fought William III. in the Netherlands. Savoy finished off a war with France. Peter the Great took Azov from the Turks and the French captured Barcelona.

The forces of Leopold I. under Prince Eugene of Savoy annihilated the Turkish army at Zenta; the Strelitzes revolted in Russia, and in 1700 Russia, Poland and Denmark entered into a joint war against Sweden. Philip V. entered Madrid and the great war of Spanish succession, which involved nearly all Europe, began in 1701.

The close of the eighteenth century brought the French conquest of Holland, insurrections in Paris, the French invasion of Germany, a successful campaign by the Austrians, the earlier victories of Bonaparte with the famous "Army of Italy," the campaigns of 1796 against Austria and Germany and a declaration of war against England by Spain.

During the last three years of that century England trembled under the shock of the earlier Napoleonic wars, and there was the great rebellion in Ireland. The English stormed Seringapatam and in 1801 came the war between Tripoli and the United States.

The precedents of history hint at war. We have had it; the question, however, is, Is peace an established fact? It certainly does not look so.

NO "BEST" MONTH.

Time of Birth Has Little to Do With Genius.

Astrologers believe that the planets "reigning" at the time of birth govern us throughout life, and that, from a literary point of view certain months are more favorable than others in which to be born.

Taking the hundred best British writers since the days of Chaucer, no less than forty-eight were born in the four months February, May, August and November.

In February were born Charles Dickens, Pepys, the diarist, and Thomas Moore, while of the more modern date and fame are George Meredith, Israel Zangwill, Anthony Hope, Harrison Ainsworth and Wilkie Collins.

Pope and Addison were both born in May, as also were Browning, Rossetti, Moore, Bulwer, Lytton, Thomas Hood, Jerome K. Jerome, and Sir James M. Barrie.

August seems to be the birthmonth of poets, for in that month were born Dryden, Herrick, Scott, Shelley, Southey and Tennyson.

Apparently November is an unlucky month for literary people, for among those who were born in November are Thomas Chatterton, who, in disappointment and poverty, committed suicide at eighteen; William Cowper, who suffered from melancholia and suicidal mania, and finally died insane; Oliver Goldsmith, continually in prison for debt; John Bunyan, who spent twelve years in prison, thereby giving us "Pilgrim's Progress"; Swift, subject to fits of passion and ill-humor, died insane; Robert Louis Stevenson, suffered from almost continual ill-health, and died at forty-four.

So much for the "favored months." Of the others, January saw the birth of Bobby Burns, Byron and Lewis Carrol, author of "Alice in Wonderland," who was also a famous mathematician.

March was the birthmonth of Smollett and Steele, as also of Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

In April was born the greatest genius the English language has known, William Shakespeare, while among others born in this month were Wordsworth, Keble, Heber, Swinburne and Herbert. Charlotte Bronte and Anthony Trollope were also born in this month.

June is not a very good month, Charles Reade and Charles Kingsley being the only two writers.

July gave us Thackeray and George Bernard Shaw, and those interested in astrology may find a resemblance between the two satirists.

September and October were both poor months, Mrs. Hemans and H. G Wells being born in September and Coleridge, Keats and Sheridan in October.

Finaly Milton, Gray and Matthew Arnold were married in December, as were also Jane Austin and Carlyle.

So there is hope for most people as far as birthmonths are concerned.

It is best to hope only for things fairly possible or probable; he that hopes too much shall deceive himself at last, especially if his industry does not go along with his hopes; for hope without action is a barren undoer.—Feltham.

The greatest moments of life are but moments like the others. Your doom is spoken in a word or two. A single look from the eyes, a mere pressure of the hand, may decide it: or of the lips though they cannot speak.—Thackerny.

GUARD AGAINST THE 'FLU

Serious Outbreaks of Influenza All Over Canada

GOOD HEALTH IS THE SUREST SAFEGUARD

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brings Vigor and Vitality and Thus Protects Against Disease.

There can be no doubt that the situation regarding the spread of Influenza throughout Canada is one of grave concern. It is quite true that the number of cases does not constitute an epidemic such as caused the suffering and sorrow during the terrible days of 1918. Yet there is no diguising the fact that everyone should be on their guard against the disease.

In Montreal alone, from January 20th to February 21st, three thousand, one hundred and twenty-one cases of Influenza and 139 deaths from the disease were reported to the Health Department.

If the outbreak had come at the beginning of the winter instead of the end, we might reasonably feel that the very cold weather would check the spread of the disease. But coming as it has, at the end of the winter, there is grave fear that an epidemic may occur. For spring, with its slush and rain under foot, its dampness and chill, its constant changing from cold to warm and back again, is a prolific source of coughs and colds, pleurisy and pneumonia.

The best protection, in fact, the only safeguard against the 'Flu, is, GOOD HEALTH.

Those who are not as well and strong as they should be; those who are underweight; those who are "run-down" through overwork or sickness; should build up at once. What they need is a blood-purifier, a body-builder, a strength-giver, like "Fruit-a-tives," the wonderful fruit medicine.

"Fruit-a-tives" regulates the kidneys and bowels, causing these organs to eliminate waste regularly and naturally as nature intended. "Fruit-a-tives" keeps the skin active, and insures an abundant supply of pure rich blood. "Fruit-a-tives" tones up and strengthens the organs of digestion, sharpens the appetite, brings restful sleep and renews the vitality of the nervous system. "Fruit-a-tives" contains everything that an ideal tonic should have; to purify the blood, to build up strength and vigor, and to regulate the eliminating organs, so that the whole system would be in the best possible condition to resist disease.

Now is the time to build up your health and strength, not only as a precaution against the ravages of Influenza, but also to protect you against "spring fever" and the inevitable reaction which comes with the appearance of warmer weather. Get a box of "Fruit-a-tives" to-day and let this fruit medicine keep you well.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, trial size 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

PILES Do not suffer another day with Itching, Bleeding, or Protruding Piles. No surgical operation required. Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve you at once and as certainly cure you. 60c. a box; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Lily Lena, England's fashion plate, the headline attraction at the Lyric theatre next week in conjunction with Pauline Frederick in the six-reel wonderplay, "The Fear Woman."

GRAND

"LISTEN LESTER"

"Listen Lester," John Cort's exhilarating musical comedy with the entire New York cast, chorus and production, gorgeously gowned and full of spontaneous wit, comes to the Grand Opera House next Friday and Saturday to inject a brilliancy into the theatre-goers of this city. Lester is not only worth listening to; but has been attested to by the fact that this play comes to Hamilton after a year's run at the Knickerbocker Theatre. Harry L. Cort, George E. Stoddard, and Harold have written a merry melange that is bright and snappy, their music being marked by an originality, for the composer has brought to his composition a cleverness and melodic veil that tickles the fancy, the ears—and the toes.

The setting is Palm Beach, which offers opportunity for unique and colorful background, and costuming of the newest design, all of which, needless to say, is taken the utmost care of in the sartorial display of the offering. In this environment is projected the story, of Arbutus Quilty, and her letters; of Colonel Dodge and his connection with these letters; of pretty Mary Dodge and her love affairs—of countless other delightful people and their equally delightful and amusing business and pleasures, and doing; all of which forms a genuinely interesting tale that is augumented by the original cast including. Mayme Gehrue, Jean Thomas, Virginia Watson, Cecil Williams, Frances Anderson, Florence De Barr, Florida Bellaire, Irving Brockes, Gus Shy, Joseph Mack, Jean Leoni, John L. Lyons, Murry Hart, Mark Thompson, Andrew Leigh and a chorus that is dainty, dancy, and altogether delectable. A special orchestra carried by the company will round out the delightful score written by Harold Orlob

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD."

The real old New England type is rapidly passing away. In a few decades he will be nothing more than a memory. But through the years, "The Old Homestead" will keep alive the quaint folks of our most historic section. It is the one American play that is true to the people and the country that it sets out to portray.

Many plays are brought out that are announced to picture certain sections of the nation, or certain cities. If given plenty of advertising and lots of stage ginger, they get by for a season or two, but unless there is truth and honest worth in them, they are soon into the heap that has been gathering since the day playhouses were invented.

For a play to continue in popularity for forty years is a record that only classics enjoy. Such is "The Old Homestead," a classic of New England of two generations ago. When the play was first presented, it was put on by New Englanders. Denman Thompson was a son of New Hampshire, the commonwealth in which the opening and closing scenes of the drama are laid; many members of his supporting company were of New England or of Yankee parentage

These pioneers laid a true foundation. All the "business' of the players was carefully set down; the mannerisms and the strange tone of voice that was a part of ancient New England has been handed down from one generation of players to another "crop," so "The Old Homestead" is still "The Old Homestead" of the days when grand-dad was a kid.

This, the greatest of native dramas, is still before the American public now on its thirty-third annual tour.

"The Old Homestead" will be presented at the Grand Opera House on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, with a matinee on Wednesday afternoon.

THE PASSING SHOW.

The attraction at the Grand Opera House on Thursday next will be the Winter Garden's mastodonic extravaganza, a chuckling compound of mirth and melody, "The Passing Show of 1918." This carnival of travesty is in two acts and twenty scenes and has a brilliantly blazing outburst of artists. This Winter Garden show is described as being a wholesale wrinkle wrecker, the summit and culmination of bigness. It is a swiftly moving frolic of bewildering surprises. "The Passing Show of 1918" has the record for the length or runs of the twenty-five extravaganzas at the Winter Garden. It lately concluded a six months' continuous run in Chicago, and has played return engagements in Washington, Philadelphia, Boston and other cities. "The Passing Show" was staged by J. C. Huffman and the dancing numbers arranged by Jack Mason, Harold Atteridge provides the book and lyrics, and the music is by Sigmund Romberg and Jean Schwartz. Of the twenty-two scenes the more important are: Hotel Biltmore, Artland, the Excelsior Moving Picture Studio, the Courtyard of the Palace of Americus, the Home of Salome, Birdland, a Listening Post on the Shore of England, a London Air Raid, Child's Restaurant, New York, and Italian Garden, a Telegraph Office and the Gold Room. In all there will be discovered travesties on all the more important dramatic successes of the time. The more important members of the cast are: Eugene and Willie Howard, Ray Cummings, John Burke, Will H. Philbrick, Helen Carrington, Leeta Corder, Emily Miles, Edward Basse, Dorsha, Alexandria Dagmar, Dolores Snares, Victor Bozart, Mary Booth, Jack Strickler, Blanche Parks, Peggy Brown, Florence Cummings, Billy Shaw and 150 others.

Winsome Viola Dana, who will be seen as the star of that beautiful picture fantasy of Old Japan, "The Willow Tree," which comes to Loew's next week as the feature of the screen bill.

LOEW'S

The quality of Loew's show for next week may be glimpsed when it is stated that Viola Dana will be seen as the star of that beautiful picture fantasy of old Japan, "The Willow Tree," which charmed Broadway when it was presented there; and that Jack Levy and his four Symphony Sisters will headline the vaudeville portion of the bill, which will be supplemented by several of the speediest and most novel acts obtainable.

The story of "The Willow Tree" concerns a young Englishman who is rejected by his sweetheart for a richer man, and who turns eastward to Japan to forget everything. Once in the Land of the Rising Sun, he loses his identity, and lives like a native, in spite of the remonstrances of a friend whom he meets in Japan. Then Hamilton, the young Englishman, encounters an old native wood-carver, who has an image, on which is the beautifully carved figure of a girl. He eventually buys the image, and takes it home with him.

There is a legend, however, which accompanies the carver figure, about the spirit of the willow tree; and Hamilton is told that if he will place a mirror in the arms of the lovely wooden maiden, she will come to life. That night, while shaving, he merrily places the mirror, according to legend, when lo and behold, the image comes to life.

Thereafter, a great love is born between Hamilton and the Japanese maiden, which is interrupted by the arrival of the fiancee from London. Hamilton tells her that he loves the maid of an alien race, and she returns to England. And then the war comes, and Hamilton has to choose between love and duty. He chooses love, but the Japanese maiden overhears his conversation, and gives instructions that the willow tree in front of their home be chopped down. With the fall of the tree the dainty maid returns to the lifeless wood of the image.

"The Willow Tree" has all the charm of "Madame Butterfly," plus the poignant dramatic quality of Mr. Wu, and makes a powerful appeal with its strain of comedy and undercurrent of human passion and human despair.

"A Study in Melody" is the title Jack Levy and his four Symphony Sisters give their musical act, and wherever these talented artists have appeared they have aroused enthusiasm and made a tremendous hit. The girls are visions of refined feminine loveliness, beautifully gowned, and their instrumental offerings prove their mastery of the flute, cello, violin, piccolo and piano. The quintette features both solo and ensemble numbers, and interpret the classics in a pulse-stirring manner. It is an offering to awaken the joy of life in all who hear it.

The domestic one-act comedy is a scintillating bit of artistry called "Any Couple," and the couple who portray the characters are capable to a degree in getting the most out of every bright line of the piece. They are Frank Dan and Margaret Neville, and are favorably known in this city.

Johnson Brothers and Johnson will offer "A Few Moments of Minstrelsy" and every second is packed full of mirth and music of the likeable sort. The Clairmont Brothers, noted as unequalled revolving aerialists, dispense smiles, thrills and skill in fascinating blend, and present among their daring stunts much new stuff.

Amusing bits of versatilities are the stock in trade of that merry team, Joe Tilyou and George Rogers, their turn bearing the tantalizing title, "Show Me." In addition to these outstanding acts there has been arranged a special film programme of news and comedy films, all up-to-date, bright and entertaining.

WALLACE REID AT LOEW'S.

That immensely popular and handsome screen favorite, Wallace Reid, will be the chief feature of the gilm bill at Loew's week after next, when he will appear in one of his inimitable characterizations in "Hawthorne, the Adventurer." In this absorbing and romantic story, the star plays the role of a Canadian. It's one of Wallace Reid's best pictures, and is sure to stir up plenty of interest among the movie fraternity of the city.

LYRIC

Lovely, lively little Lily Lena, London's lilting laughing lady is the star attraction which the Lyric announces ts the chief feature of a big bill next week. Lily Lena's name at an English music hall means the hall is packed throughout her engagement, for in all of England there is not a more popular comedienne. She has slipped away from her dear old London and come to America and Canada for a very brief stay, and while she is here vaudeville is given an opportunity to see how nearly alike American and British amusement taste really is. Miss Lena at home is an idol, and during the few weeks she has been on this side of the pond she has become a big favorite. She is described as "England's fashion plate comedienne." Miss Lena has a large repertoire of exclusive songs and from this repertoire she has selected a programme of lyric stories that are said to be exceptionally clever, and which are made many times so by her unique delivery.

Bowers, Walters and Crocker, three rube comedians, pantomists and tumblers, and just about the best in their line, will be the added attraction. Pauline Frederick will be the picture star in The Fear Woman.

Clayton Kennedy and Mattie Rooney in The Widowed Pair bill themselves as "two regular vaudevillians" and live up to it. Mr. Kennedy is an eccentric comedian whose original methods make him a sure-fire getter and his burlesque piano playing and dancing. Miss Rooney in a series of classy specialties, cleverly woven into their funny skit.

When it come to magic, jugglery and acrobatics, the Chinese easily carry away the palm. The Oriental has a peculiar adaptability for these endeavors and the Canton trio ranks as Chinese prestidigators. With perfect ease and almost sangfroid they present a routine of magic, jugglery and acrobatics that is extremely different.

Bricklayers is Leon Gautier's new canine novelty. His "Toy Shop" was one of the most unusual vehicles for the display of animal intellect and training. "Bricklayers" are dog masons. The curtain raises showing a building in course of erection. The scaffold is built with dog brcklayers at work and the dog workmen carry mortar and bricks and rise and descend upon the elevator. At a given moment the scaffolding becomes a series of perches and Mr. Gauthier's charges are seen in complicated and difficult feats of animal acrobatics.

Fargo and Richards, a piano, comedy singing duo will round out a first-class bill.

THE FEAR WOMAN.

"The Fear Woman," newest of Pauline Frederick's Goldwyn pictures, comes to the Lyric theatre beginning Monday and promises to reveal anew the extraordinary dramatic equipment of the vivid star as well as to disclose beauty of face and figure that will surprise those who know Pauline Frederick well.

As Helen Winthrop, the girl who gives up the man she loves because of fear lest an hereditary taint overcome her, Miss Frederick is by turns subtle, amazing, and at all times charming and real. Without doubt her role in the Izola Forrester drama is the most human and appealing of her many cinema characterizations.

The most intense moments of the play are found in the magnificent dinner at which Helen Winthrop's engagement is announced and her father plunges down a flight of stairs; the smart, though quiet, marriage ceremony which progresses to the point where Helen refuses to wed the man she loves because of the terror in her heart; the curious love tangle in which she sacrifices her reputation ot save the good name of her dearest friend and, of course, the steadily mounting climax of the drama at the summer hotel whence Helen goes to seek forgetfulness. The denouement is happy one and completely surprising ones themselves, each with a keen thrust for any competitor in the field of matrimony.

Men, Men!
Try It To-Night---
Feel Fine To-morrow

Simple Way to Get "Pep," To Be Put Right On Your Feet.

When a man has lost ambition to "dig in" and stay at things—when he complains of headache, fullness in the right side, pains in the shoulder blade—it's purely a case of "Liver."

These symptoms invariably indicate a clogged inactive liver. The body can get rid of its wastes, and the whole system is half paralyzed.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills stimulate the liver into activity in one night. Being a mild vegetable laxative they produce results in a few hours. The bilious headache and constipation are cured, spirits rise, complexion clears, animation returns. Nothing in the calendar so efficient for that tired, lazy feeling as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Very mild, don't interfere with work, invariably do lots of good. Try a 25c box, all dealers.

"Your poetry is delightfully obscure," said the editor. "Do you really think so?" exclaimed the delighted poet. "Yes, indeed," repeated the editor. "The railroads might have utilized your talents in compiling their timetables."

Music AND Drama

FIRST METHODIST CHOIR CONCERT.

Harry J. Allen and his 150 choirsters are hard at work preparing for the choir concert to be given by First Methodist Choir on Thursday evening, March 18. From now on, practices will be held three times a week, so that the exacting standard toward which the talented conductor of this fine singing organization always strives shall be attained.

Patrons will be pleased to know that Mr. Allen has arranged that reserved tickets may be secured and without extra charge. In view of the fact that the sale of seats has been a record one, and that indications point to a more than capacity audience, those contemplating enjoying this musical treat would be wise to attend to the matter of tickets at once. They may be secured from members of the choir, at Anderson's music store, 148 James street north; at Richard's, 145 King street east, or at Martin's 591 King street east. Since last announcement a slight change has been made in the programme, the chorus, "Sing for Our Fallen Brave," being changed for "Sing, Oh Gladsome Light." Most of the numbers will be sung a capella, and it will be noticed in the rendition of these that the choirsters under Mr. Allen's baton are thoroughly conversant with the art of delicate shading. The programme is an especially pleasing and varied one, which cannot fail to prove pleasurable to every music-lover.

Miss Elizabeth Campbell, the great Canadian contralto, and Leo Smith, cellist, will be the assisting artists, and will present a programme of exceptional charm. Probably no singer who has appeared here in recent seasons has possessed the personality, voice or technical gifts of this former member of the Boston Grand Opera Company, and Hamiltonians are due a genuine treat. Of Leo Smith and his art it is superfluous to speak, as he is so well-known and such a favorite here that he is always assured a large audience.

TEMPLE

In "Eyes of Youth," in which Clara Kimball Young is being starred, Harry Garson has screened the biggest and most elaborate set ever attempted upon an interior stage. In years past there have been gigantic outdoor sets, such as in Griffith's "Intolerance," DeMille's "Joan the Woman," and going back to "Cabira," but these sets have all being built in the open.

In one of the last scenes of "Eyes of Youth," an entire New York block was built upon the twenty thousand feet of flooring space at the Garson Studios, Inc. The Forty-sixth street side of the Ritz-Carlton was produced in the most infinite detail.

It is that part of the story which shows the heroine, who has been an outcast by her husband and has become a drug addict, haunting the entrance of the big hotel and taking a peculiar delight in watching the well-dressed women enter and leave the cafe.

This great set was designed by John M. Voshell, of the Garson Studios, and before the ponderous masonry was erected ,it was necessary to construct concrete supports beneath the beath the stage to hold the tremendous weight upon it. An entire street was laid and paved upon the stage, with cement sidewalks, street lights, even to the manholes in the sidewalks being practical, and the corner fireplugs. The designers worked from several hundred dollars' worth of photographs taken of the Ritz-Carlton, combined with a practical knowledge of its architecture. When completed, the hotel front covered a frontage of more than four hundred feet of practical stone facing and its marquise of beautifully wrought iron. The scene showed the arrival of guests at the hotel cafe during a violent winter rain storm, the rain being driven at high pressure by a high wind. At one time during the shooting of the scene, more than twenty automobiles and limousines were drawn up in front of the hotel, while the occuants, clad in evening clothes, were hurried through the downpour into the broad doorways. The result, as will be shown in "Eyes of Youth," defies distinction, and so carefully has this big scene being worked out that it is absolutely impossible to tell that it was done upon an interior stage in a California studio instead of on Forty-sixth street, New York City.

The shooting of the scene began at 8 o'clock at night and was completed at 8 o'clock the following morning, during which time Miss Young worked almost continually in the pouring rain and an ice-cold wind created by the airplane propellers attached to powerful Liberty motors at both ends of the stage.

Miss Young as the dilapidated drug addict; Edmund S. Lowe, in the romantic male role, and Norman Selby (Kid McCoy)) as the detective, were the principal actors in this scene, where more than a hundred and fifty actors were used.

"Eyes of Youth" will be seen at the Temple the first four days of next week.

FEAR ANOTHER IRISH TRAGEDY

Situation Said to Be Changing Rapidly.

Only Coolness Can Avert a Collision.

London, March 5.—The Graphic today features a Dublin despatch, saying that the Irish situation is changing remarkably. The despatch declares that nothing can avert a fresh tragedy except the utmost coolness on the part of the authorities and that any increase in the rigor of martial law will inevitably precipitate such a tragedy.

The chief danger, according to the Graphic advices, is the wide-spread conviction that a small Dublin Castle clique is bent on getting Ireland's youths into the open so that the morale of the Sinn Fein may be broken by bloody repression. This, however, the despatch says, is having one good result in causing the Sinn Fein leaders to avoid provocation at all costs.

The speech of Sir Horace Plunkett at Dublin last night, in which he sharply criticised the new Irish Home Rule bill, taken with Ian MacPherson's defence of the Irish Administration in the House of Commons, formed the basis of comment in some of the morning newspapers.

The Daily News, severely condemning the new Home Rule measure, asks:

"Can the insincere jugglers who are thus mocking the maddened victims of their cowardly policy be relied upon to give real effect to the slight promise of happier development which may be hidden in its crooked promises?"

The Post charges Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, with responsibility for the present "shameful" position. The newspaper tells the Vice-Royal his duty is to order that after a given date all proven guilty of crimes or violence be court-martialled and shot. Otherwise, the Post says, he ought to resign.

"Viscount French was appointed to govern Ireland," the Post declares. "He has failed. He must know he has failed and it is inconceivable how he justifies his continuance in office."

$3,095,41.50 BY ANGLICANS

Latest Return On the Forward Movement.

Presbyterians Are Still Getting Funds.

Toronto, March 6.—With the new Dominion total of $3,095,141.50 reported by the Anglican Forward Movement yesterday, the Anglican organization, represented by Mr. Evelyn Macrae, Dominion Commissioner, and Canon S. Gould, vice-chairman of the executive committee, draw attention to the fact that the original financial objective of the movement was based on the minimum requirements of the church. In view of this, the committee earnestly hope that the great success so far attained will prove an incentive to every diocese which has not yet reached its full allotment, to make every effort to do so. They have also sent out a message, expressing the further hope that every parish in Canada, which has not yet made an every-member canvass, will complete one at the earliest suitable date. At the same time, the committee reminds all Anglicans who have not contributed to the cause that two-thirds of every dollar now sent in will go, in the case of the dioceses which have exceded the amount to their allotments, to their own local needs. The additional one-third will be distributed to the several funds specified in the appeal.

Dr. Robert Laird, of the Presbyterian Forward Movement, has received many late but encouraging reports, which still further indicate that the congregations holding late canvasses are maintaining the high standard of the early days of the drive. In many cases they have exceeded their allocations. Presbyteries everywhere are exceeding their objectives. Recent reports show Hamilton Presbytery as having subscribed $338,500 on an allocation of $205,000; London Presbytery is now practically sure of reaching $175,000, or $30,000 more than its objective; Guelph Presbytery will exceed its allocation of $125,000, while Chatham Presbytery has already run up the fine total of $100,000 on an objective of $63,000.

Dempsey-Willard Pictures to be Shown at Temple Next Wednesday Night

A showing of the full five-reel Dempsey-Willard championship bout pictures for the entertainment of patients at the military hospital brings that extra-interesting sport film back to Hamilton on Wednesday next, arrangements being made for its display at the hospital (for the view of patients and staff only) that evening. At a later hour, 10.45 o'clock, after the regular performance, the big special feature picture will be given a return showing at the Temple Theatre, in response to numerous requests for another view sent in by Hamiltonians who missed the picture when it was exhibited here (for the first time in Ontario) on February 9th. For the benefit of these it may be said with confidence that if they are at all interested in boxing, or in forming their own judgment of the ability of Dempsey, the new champion, to take Carpentier's measure; or if they merely want to see the most strenuous and exciting ring picture ever taken; or if they care to get a line on Frankie Mason and Carl Tremaine, both of whom are out for the world's bantam championship—they should take advantage of this last chance to see the show at the Temple, late on Wednesday night. The main picture duplicates with complete fidelity and rare exactitude the the memorable meeting at Toledo, when Dempsey, to the amaze of the sporting world, snatched the heavyweight crown from big Jess Willard. As the presentation of the picture throughout Ontario is in aid of returned soldier bodies, the Temple Theatre has been kindly donated for the occasion, the screening of this ring contest having been sanctioned for the first time such a picture has been presented in Ontario within a decade, upon request of the Grand Army of Canada. The movie reproduction of the great match is spoken of by experts as the most wonderful achievement of photography depicting any such event. Critics who saw the bout itself declare the picture duplication an improvement upon the original from the spectators' standpoint and spectacularly. One of Toronto's best known sporting experts, Mr. Hewitt of the Star, wrote of the picture: "There was much more caught by the camera than was seen by the naked eye, even when said eye was possessed by a trained observer, who was there for the specific purpose of recording just what happened." Hewitt also adds: "The pictures are very good, and, with the preliminary material, run for over an hour and a half." From an artistic angle the film could not be improved upon. The day was an ideal one for photographic purposes and every move, blow or tactical play is clearly shown. Nor is interest one whit less in the preliminaries, which include one complete bout in which the contestants are Frankie Mason, American flyweight champion, and Carl Tremaine, challenger for the world's bantamweight honors.

ARE ALLIES TO OCCUPY CITY OF CONSTANTINOPLE?

London Daily Express Says the Supreme Council Has So Decided

Fear Nationalists Plan to Control the Newly-Formed Cabinet

London, March 5.—The Allies have decided to occupy Constantinople, the Daily Express learns.

NATIONALISTS IN CONTROL.

Constantinople, March 5.—Turkish Nationalists are expected to be prominent in the new Cabinet, and it is probable such prominent figures as Rouif Bey, Deputy for Sivas, and even Mustapha Kemal, Nationalist leader in Anatolia, may have places. It is considered probable the new Cabinet will strongly oppose ratification of a peace treaty if it does not recognize claims of the Nationalists.

Allied high commissioners here have been insisting the Cabinet should better conditions in Anatolia, especially since recent disorders at Marash and in Cilicia. The Constantinople Government has been virtually powerless, as Mustapha Kemal has been in full control in Anatolia.

While the announcement that the Turks will be left in Constantinople has been welcomed, especially by the Sultan's supporters, it is daily becoming clearer that Mustapha Kemal's forces in Asia Minor will not accept peacefully the partitioning of Asiatic Turkey, which the Supreme Council is believed to contemplate. It is universally conceded Mustapha Kemal represents the real power of Turkey.

Although the British, French and Italians hold Constantinople and the straits securely with their navies, Allied tenure of occupied portions of Asiatic Turkey is being vigorously contested. Mustapha Kemal's organized forces are variously estimated from 500,000 to 1,000,000, with the cooperation of various Arab and Kurd bands. His supporters predict war this spring, or sooner, if the Greeks are left in Smyrna and the French in Cicilia.

Through their control of the Turkish Chamber of Deputies, it is asserted, Mustapha Kemal's Nationists virtually dominate the Constantinople Government, and laugh at the Allied threats to the Sultan and Allied naval displays in the straits. The real Government is at Angora, beyond reach of naval guns, and the Nationalists boast the Allies cannot recruit armies and raise sufficient money to carry on war in the interior of Asia Minor or retain occupied sections.

MUST FALL BACK ON LONDON PACT

If Attempts to Settle Fiume Case Fail

Is Reply to Allies to U. S. President.

Washington, March 5.—If all attempts to settle the Fiume controversy end in failure the Allies will have but one recourse, and it will be the pact of London.

In reply to President Wilson's communication they say they welcome American participation in the Fiume settlement, they express the hope that some arrangement may be worked out by only Jugo-Slavia and Italy, but "they cannot disguise the fact that, should no voluntary settlement of this kind be attained, the Treaty of London, to which they set their hand in 1915, would then become the only valid alternative so far as they were concerned."

The State Department to-day made public the reply, and by Monday it is expected to make public the President's reply thereto.

The outstanding feature of the budget of communications was the stand of the Allies, that if all other settlements fail they will have to apply the pact of London. Their note indicates the immediate necessity of haste, however, if England, France and the United States are again to hazard a solution of the problem. It says:

"In conclusion, the French and English Prime Ministers venture to call the attention of President Wilson to the urgent importance of a speedy settlement of the Adriatic dispute—a dispute which is now gravely threatening the peace and delaying the reconstruction of Southeastern Europe."

Great Britain and France are in accord with the President on his willingness to accept an Italian-Jugo-Slav decision; in fact, they say it would be the ideal way of settling the question at issue, and to show their cooperation they announce, in their reply, the withdrawal of the proposals of December 9 and January 20. Furthermore, they invite the President to join with them in paving the way for a two-party settlement, and his reply, which will be made public later, may be an acceptance of this idea and a suggestion of the method he believes best to pursue.

DIAMOND QUEEN TAKES HER LIFE

When Facing Arrest On Swindling Charge.

Snatched Poison Dose From Handbag.

New York, March 5.—Annette Bonner, who became widely known in 1914 as the "Queen of Diamonds" through having been charged, together with Joseph Kilsinger, with swindling jewelers of Maiden Lane out of jewelry valued at thousands, defied the police to take her alive when they sought to arrest her to-day on a fresh swindling charge. The "Queen of Diamonds" was in the office of Kilsinger, who also was included in the charge, when detectives tried to arrest her.

"You'll never take me alive," she exclaimed.

Her hand flashed from her handbag to her mouth and she smiled defiantly as she swallowed a dose of poison. She died a little later in the Volunteer Hospital.

In the handbag the police later found uncut diamonds valued at $50,000 and several thousand dollars in cash.

Miss Bonner worked New York from 1911 to 1913. She left suddenly for Europe with Kilsinger in the latter year, and later Maiden Lane diamond merchants announced that they missed about $200,000 worth of stones.

FRANCE WANTS RESERVATIONS

In the Allied Economic Declaration

After Conditions On the German Loan.

Paris, March 5.—France has neither signed nor approved the declaration regarding the economic situation of Europe which the Allied Supreme Council has proposed to make, it was declared here to-day.

The original text of the Allied declaration, it is stated, begins by setting forth that small nations bordering on Russia must be obliged to make peace with the Russian Soviet Government in order that the economic revival may begin. It follows with the statement that Germany must be provided with the means of resuming industrial activity and that since the prosperity of Europe depends upon the prosperity of all countries, it is proposed that a loan be made to Germany, guaranteed by German assets, in priority to repatriation payments, the loan payments to be controlled by neutral commissions.

Instructions are being sent to Ambassador Cambon in London, it was declared this afternoon, that he sign the declaration with the following reservations:

First—France will not join in any pressure upon the small countries along the Russian border to oblige them to make peace with the Soviet.

Second—France will not consent to giving any priority over repatriations on any assets of Germany pledged for that purpose.

Third—France will not consent to the control of German payments on any loans Germany may make by any other organization than the Reparations Commission.

FIFTY MILLION TON SHORTAGE

In Bituminous Coal Supply in America.

Preferential Lists Again On in U. S.

Washington, March 5.—A coal shortage estimated in the neighborhood of 50,000,000 tons resulted to-night in the complete re-establishment of preferential lists by Director-General of Railways Walker D. Hines.

Acting under the powers conferred upon him by the President, under executive orders issued February 28 and to-day, Director Hines to-night ordered that all producers and shippers give preference in the shipment of bituminous coal as follows:

1. Railroads.
2. Army and navy, together with othr departments of the Federal Government.
3. State and county departments and institutions.
4. Public utilities.
5. Retail dealers.

After this preferential list, manufacturers engaged in turning out necessities are to be allowed coal.

Because of the severe weather conditions, diversion of coal by New England by water will be continued, it being found impossible to transport sufficient amounts to that section by rail.

The preferential lists recalled into being by Director Hines' order of today are the old lists used for the diversion of coal during the war by the United States Fuel Administration.

EXCHAGNE IS AGAIN BETTER

Pound Sterling Went 12 Cents Higher

And Canadian Dollar Up to 88.25.

New York, March 5.—Foreign exchange continued to advance to-day, in the face of denials from foremost local and foreign interests of any immediate prospect of European gold imports, even in moderate volume.

J. P. Morgan and Company, financial agents of the British Government here, declared they were without any knowledge of such a movement. Advices from London also pointed to the slight probability of gold shipments here in the immediate future. Several moderate imports of the metal from Canada were said to be without bearing upon the reported Anglo-French situation.

Trading in British bills during the day was quite extensive, with only moderate transactions in French exchange. Operations were characterized as largely speculative and partly in the nature of short covering.

At its high of $3.70 for demand bills, the London rate was 12 cents to the pound over yesterday's maximum and 51 cents above the minimum recorded on February 4. After the close of the stock market offerings of bills on London forced the price back to $3.65¼, with variable reactions in French and Italian quotations.

Canadian dollars are now quoted at 88.25.

TO FIX AMOUNT HUNS MUST PAY

Best for All to Do So, Allies Decide.

Act Everywhere to End Extravagance.

London, March 5.—The Allied Supreme Council has decided it is in the interest both of the Allies and Germany that the total of the German reparation payments be fixed at the earliest possible date.

The report summing up the conclusions reached by the Allied statesmen at their conferences here expresses the view that Germany would be enabled to obtain essential foodstuffs and raw materials, and, further, that she should be allowed, if necessary, to raise a loan to cover her immediate needs.

The final reports recommends that armies everywhere be reduced to their pre-war footing and armaments be limited to the lowest expenditure compatible with security.

The League of Nations is invited to consider as soon as possible proposals to carry out these recommendations.

It was further concluded that measures should be taken everywhere and at once for the suppression of extravagance and the reduction of expenditure so as to bridge the gap between demand and supply of essential necessities.

Early steps are to be taken to secure the deflation of credit and currency by making Governmental expenditure and revenue balance by additional taxation and the funding of short loans and the immediate limitation and gradual curtailment of note circulation.

The Supreme Council recognizes that capital for the restoration of the devastated areas which cannot wait, may properly be raised by anticipatory market loans.

The Council agrees that an extension period be given Germany in which to make proposals for fixing the total of the reparation payments.

The Allies have instructed their representatives on the reparation commission to ask Germany if she is prepared to make such a proposal and to inform that they are ready, in accordance with article 235, to authorize Germany and Austria to raise a loan abroad to obtain funds for the purchase of food and raw material.

Article 235 of the Versailles Treaty provides that food and raw materials essential to enable Germany to meet her obligations may be paid for out of the total reparation sum, tentatively fixed at 20,000,000,000 gold marks.

FAVOR HIGHER AUTOMOBILE FEE

Good Roads Ass'n. Plan to Raise Road Funds.

T. J. Mahoney Is a Vice-President.

Toronto, March 6.—As a mark of appreciation of the progressive good road programme announced by the Ontario Government, through the Minister of Public Works, the Ontario Good Roads Association went on record yesterday as favoring a general scaling up in the fees now charged for automobile licenses. They also passed a resolution approving the policy for good roads as outlined by Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Public Works. The association also went on record as favoring the spreading of the cost of provincial roads over a whole county instead of limiting the expense to the township through which the road may pass.

An interesting address was delivered at the forenoon session by Lieut.-Col. W. G. MacKendrick, D.S.O., who made a reputation for himself at the front as a road buildes. Col. MacKendrick gave a reminiscent talk of his experiences and difficulties in France with road gangs.

Mr. W. A. McLean, Deputy Minister of Highways, emphasized some of the points which had previously been drawn to the attention of the association. He insisted upon proper drainage. One of the worst slanders upon the macadam road, he stated, was due to lack of drainage, for even macadam roads could not stand up if they were constantly subjected to the seepage of water from underneath. Mr. McLean supported the views of other speakers that maintenance comes first."

"We are going to do a good job on Ontario highways," he declared. "And we hope we are going to give the people something they have never had before. In the meantime, while the job is but half finished, don't kick too hard. We are going to build the best system of roads on the continent, in spite of the mistakes of the past, and we want your assistance."

Following are the officers for the coming year: Honorary Presidents: K. W. McKay, St. Thomas; C. R. Wheelock, Orangevillle; President, L. E. Allan, Belleville; 1st Vice-President, T. J. Mahony, Wentworth County; 2nd Vice-President, W. H. Brown, Bruce County; Secretary-Treasurer, Hon. G. S. Henry. Directors: F. A. Senecal, L'Orignal; T. J. Mahoney, Hamilton; John Currie, Strathroy; J. E. Jamieson, Singhampton; W. H. Nugent, S. L. Squires, Toronto; T. L. Kennedy, Dixie; W. H. Pugsley, J. A. Sanderson, and J. E. Masters.

Mischievousness of Youth.

A young wife put down her book with a sigh. "What is it, darling?" her husband asked. "Ah, dearest, I am so happy!" she replied. "Yes, but you had such a sad look in your eyes just now." "I know, I've been reading about the unhappiness that the wives of men of genius have always had to bear. Oh, Alfred, dear, I'm so glad you're just an ordinary sort of fellow!"

Kid Bingham Turns Down Offer to Meet Frankie Fleming at G.A.C. Show

Local Battler Wants None of Montrealer's Game Just at Present---Fight Gossip

Kid Bingham is willing to meet Frankie Fleming any place but in a roped arena, according to Matchmaker Charles Hallett, of the G. A. C, who held a conference with the Harvester A. C. boy at noon yesterday. Bingham wants none of Fleming's game just at the present time, but chances are that the two boys will be brought together here at a later date. Just who Frankie's opponent will be on Friday night next is still a mystery, but local fans can rest assured that the boy selected will be none other than a top-notcher, as Hallet is anxious to give Hamiltonians the best card they have witnessed here since the Eber-Tremaine scrap.

Fleming is expected here on Monday or Tuesday at the latest and will work out with Eddie Gallagher and other boys at the Woods' stable. The Montreal battler is in Toronto at the present time working out daily at the Hart house in preparation for his coming bout with Johnny Kilbane which is scheduled for March 26 in Toronto.

Manager Woods had a letter from Kennedy yesterday informing him that everything was going well at Buffalo. Irish is working out daily with Jimmy Goodrich and Young Schoell and expects to be in tip-top shape for his bout with McCracken next Friday.

London, March 5.—Joe Beckett, the heavyweight pugilist, knocked out Dick Smith, light heavyweight champion of England, in the fifth round at Albert Hall to-night. The bout was for the championship of Great Britain.

Atlanta, March 6.—Mike O'Dowd, middleweight champion, scored a technical knockout here last night over Tommy Murphy, of Chicago, when when the referee stopped the bout in the ninth round to save Murphy further punishment. The fight was scheduled for ten rounds.

Battle Creek, Mich., March 6.—Sailor Butler, of New York, won the newspaper decision from Frankie Russell, of New Orleans, in a hard-fought ten-round bout at Camp Custer last night.

Glens Falls, N. Y., March 6.—Before the Broadway Athletic Club last night, Clarry Marshall, of Pittsfield, Mass., outfought Eddie Summers, of New York in a hard-fought ten-round bout. Summers had several pounds advantage but Marshall forced the fight in every round.

Cleveland, March 6.—Carl Tremaine, of Cleveland, was given the newspaper decision over Ben Vogel, of Milwaukee, in a ten-round contest here last night. Vogel substituted for Johnnie Richie, who injured his hand.

Philadelphia, March 6.—Pete Herman, bantam weight champion, who was to have met K. O. Joe O'Donnell, of Gloucester, N. J., here to-night in a six-round bout, was forced to cancel his engagement because of illness. He is suffering from influenza and is confined to his bed.

Sporting Comment

Among the last minute entries to reach Bobby Kerr for the big athletic meet to be staged here on March 11, were those of Breen and Ponton, of Toronto, rated to be the best sprinters in Canada to-day. This makes an entry of thirty for the 60 yard dash which promises to be one of the mast exciting events of the big programme, which appears on another part of this page. Several local boys will start in this race, but local enthusiasts are pinning their hopes on Ollie Johnson to come home in front.

Hank Woods has agreed to allow Hughie Hayes to act as third man in the ring on Friday night next, but he wants it understood right now that judges must be appointed to hand out the decisions, or his boys will not start. "Hayes is a good referee" said Henry this morning, but after his confession of last week, I will not stand for any more of his decisions.

Chairman Wright of the Park's Board, says it is illegal to take up a collection in a public park and chances are more will be heard of his complaint before the baseball season rolls around. Judging from Mr. Wright's remark, one would think that everyone who steps into Victoria and Eastwood parks to see a ball game is held up at the point of a gun and forced to come across, but such is not the case. Those who contribute do it voluntarily, and for Mr. Wright's benefit let it be said that the collections taken in do not always pay the expenses of the season. Last summer was the first year that the league was a success financially.

Mario de Vitalis, the youngster who used to curve them over for Brown University, will point to March 3 as the red letter day in his life, on that day he actually struck out Babe Ruth. There was no fluke about it, either. Devie served up two slow ones that the behemoth sent shooting sky high, but foul, and then to see what would happen, he burned over a curve. Babe, like Casey, shattered the air with the force of his swing, and at once the college lad voted himself a Major Leaguer. Babe appreciated the fact that the drinks were on him, and bowled out in his foghorn tones: "Got me on that one."

Granites Not Penalized For Roughing It

Tiger Officials Say Kitchener Got Worst of It

Granites body-checked their way to a tie with Kitchener at the Toronto Arena last evening, according to the reports brought back here by Tiger officials who occupied rail seats. In the second and third periods the Toronto team got away with so much hard checking that one Tiger official complained to Stephen Vair and Steve made a pass at him. Later in the game the same party again spoke to Vair about the "rough stuff" Granites were getting away with, and Vair is alleged to have hit him with his bell. During the periods the Tiger official went in search of Vair, and he was put out of the Arena.

If Steve Vair and Tommy Munro allowed Granites to get away with as much "rough stuff" as reported, it is up to the O. H. A. to appoint officials for the next game who will see through two pair of glasses.

Just why the next game was laid over until Wednesday is rather hard to figure out. There is an open date at the Arena on Monday night, and there is no reason why the teams could not play then. Surely there is no move on hand to delay the finals and prevent Tigers from getting the well-earned trip to Belgium.

Victoria, B. C., March 6.—Last night Victoria beat Vancouver in one of the most strenuous games played this year. The combination which the locals have been showing more or less regularly throughout the season was working at its best last night, and the visitors had all they could do to keep Victoria from piling up a big score on them. The final score was 3 to 2.

Boston, Mrch 6.—The Victorias, of Montreal, defeated the Dartmouth club players last night in an overtime game by a score of 6 to 5.

Pittsburg, March 6.—The Pittsburg Athletic Association hockey team defeated the Boston sextette, 7 to 2, in the fifth game of the Olympic elimination series here last night.

Kingston Lost on Home Ice to Collingwood

Intermediate Champs Take First Game by 2-1 Score

Kingston, March 5.—In the first game of the final of the intermediate O. H. A. played here this evening Collingwood won from Kingston by the score of 2 to 1. The first period stood 1 to 0, and there was no score made in the second period. The secret of Collingwood's win was due to the fact that during the whole game they combined into team work and were able to get in on Toban.

Had it not been for the fact that Toban was on the job all the time the score might have been a lot larger. It was a good exhibition of hockey. Very few were penalized for pulling off any rough stuff. The return game will be played in Collingwood on Monday night.

For the winners McLeod and Fryer were the stars, while Cook and Stewart did the sensational work for Kingston.

In the first period the play had been going eighteen minutes until Walton registered the first goal. The second period showed neither team being able to count. Foulis counted for Collingwood and Smith for Kingston in the last period. The teams were:

Kingston—Goal, Toban; defence, Brown and Elmer; centre, Stewart; wings, Cook and Smith; spares, Stanton, Derry.

Collingwood—Goal, Cook; defence, McLeod and Noble; centre, Hughes; wings, Fryer and Walton; spares, Burns and Foulis.

Referee—L. Whitehead.

Judge of Play—Willard Box.

Assault-at-Arms at Collegiate Was Big Success

Large Crowd Enjoyed the Fine Programme

The annual assault-at-arms, held at the Collegiate gym. last evening was the best ever. Everything was run off in record time. Nowhere in the evening's programme was there a moment that lacked excitement or fun. Mr. McGarvin, acting as announcer, was one of the busiest on the floor, preparing and heralding the events.

In the first event, the H.C.I. intermediates defeated St. Andrew's College I. of Toronto, in one of the fastest basketball games ever played by the Collegiate II. team. The game throughout was replete with thrill after thrill. At the end of the first half the score stood 5—5, due to the hard checking of both sides. In the second half St. Andrew's obtained a lead which they held until two minutes to go. Coming from behind and forcing the play, Collegiate nosed their opponents out by the close margin of 18—16. The line-up with points:

St. Andrew's College—Forwards, Getty (6), Peene (4); centre, Grayson (4); defence, Cameron, Crowther (2); subs, Hunter, Daly.

H.C.I. II.—Forwards, Laidman (7), Allan (3); centre, Robinson; defence, Maier, Pickard (4); subs, Kellner, Willard (4).

Referee—Stewart Philpott.

Between halves, ten minutes of pillow-fighting produced a good laugh for all. Blindfolded and armed to the teeth with pillows, the combatants took the floor and hammered away at each other until exhausted.

Two boxing bouts followed. The first, between Walsh and Malone, was a side-splitter. Urged on by the shouts of the crowd, they bombarded each other with blow after blow for the full four rounds. A draw was the best decision Referee Davidson could call, when the smoke cleared. Kirkbride and Challon met in the second battle of four rounds. In the first round Challon was the agressor, while Kirkbride came back strong at times. In the second Kirkbride had the edge, but both mixed freely. In the third Challon picked off some neat jabs at the face. Kirkbride finished with a clean punch to the chin. In the fourth Challon moved quickly, but Kirkbride handed out some stingers. Both mixed freely. Another draw was the decision handed out.

The next event was a display of parallel-bar work by George Taylor and Robert Wagner. The pair performed many difficult and neat exercises. The varied stunts pleased the audience immensely, who received each with much applause.

The basketball game between Toronto Central "Y" junior O.B.A. team, and the H.C.I. Reps., the main event of the evening, completed the programme. The game was hard, fast and clean. Collegiate got away to an early lead. Eleven points were scored before Toronto Central found themselves. The stubborn defence of the H.C.I. held Toronto in check with ease. Smith made some sensational shots, scoring fourteen points. Many wierd shots were scored by both sides. Aggressors at all time, H.C.I. was leading at half-time 30—12. In the second half Toronto came back strong and began to force the play. The combination of both teams was a treat to the onlookers. Wells at centre played the best game for Toronto, doing most of their scoring in this half. Maintaining their lead throughout, Collegiate rallied in the dying stages of the game and gained a comfortable lead. In this half Newbury was replaced by Drew, while Lloyd substituted for Wilson.

"Nig" Philpott scored some clean foul shots, putting in four out of five chances. With both teams working at top-speed the game ended H.C.I. winners by 48—27. The line-up:

Toronto Central "Y"— Forwards, Bocknek (4). Shuter (6); centre, Wells (13); defence, Uren (4). Young.

H.C.I.—Forwards, Smith (18), Wilson (2); centre, Philpott (12); defence, Newberry (4). Waldron (6); subs, Lloyd (4). Drew (2).

Mr. Tressider proved an excellent referee.

This is the sixth victory for H.C.I. without a defeat. All their games have been won by a margin of nineteen points or more. It looks like a successful wear for all Hamilton teams.

Tigers Meet Winners Here Friday Night

Tigers will meet the winners of the Granite-Kitchener game in Hamilton on Friday night of next week and the return game will be in Toronto on the following Monday regardless of who wins the game next Wednesday night. This information was given out this morning after the O.H.A. officials had refused to give Kitchener the amount they asked for the rent of their rink.

Kitchener and Granites Battle Thirty Minutes Overtime to Tie Score

Failed to Break Tie for Group Championship and They Will Meet Again Next Wednesday

Toronto, March 6.—In one of the greatest and most thrilling battles ever fought on Toronto ice, Kitchener and Granites fought last night for thirty minutes overtime to a tie score of four all. Not since the famous T. R. & A.A.-Toronto Rowing Club game of some years ago has there been such a struggle. O.H.A. rules not permitting a game to be played any longer than an extra half hour, the clubs left the ice at the end of the extra thirty minutes and after a short conference in the dressing rooms agreed on next Wednesday night at the date of the new game, in which it is hoped to declare a winner for Group No. 2. The game will be played at the Arena.

The Granites put up a terrific struggle to tie up the game in the third period, which they entered two goals down. From the first gong to the last they pressed with all they had and bombarded the Kitchener net with shots from every angle. Their efforts were attended with success and they got their two needed tallies, the first coming after three minutes of play and the second ten minutes later. From that time until the game was called off both teams fought tooth and nail for the score which would have meant victory, but though there were many minutes when the huge crowd held its breath not a shot passed by either goalkeeper.

GRANITES SHOULD HAVE WON.

On the play of the night Granites should have won. They put up an exhibition of hockey that was so far above all their previous performances that one began to wonder if it was the same team. Kitchener had the edge in the first period when they scored three goals, but two of these should never have got past Addison. In an ordinary game he would have stopped them, but last night in the opening stage of the contest he was keyed up to the highest tension, and that probably accounts for his failure to stop the first two goals. In that period Granites also got one, and the period ended that way. Granites had much the better of the second round, but though they did their utmost they were unable to get more than one shot past Hainsworth, while Kitchener also scored one. In the third period the locals kept up the dizzy pace and had Kitchener absolutely bunched up in their own end of the rink for three-quarters of the period. During the last twenty minutes Granites evened up the score.

To three men must the bulk of the credit for Granite's magnificent showing be given. Those three men are, in order or merit, Fox, Rommerill and Laflamme. Fox outshone and outplayed every other man on the ice. His performance was absolutely astounding. On the defence he played a perfect game, taking the puck from the attacking forwards or pushing them into the corner and making it absolutely impossible for them to get either a pass to a centre or a shot on the net. But it was on the attack that he shone with the greatest brilliance. Securing the puck, he would swing around in a circle and then make a straight dash for the opposite net, skating at a terrific speed, while the audience rose to its feet and roared. Time after time in the second and third periods he went through the entire Kitchener team, only to have Trushniski or Merrick make a lucky stab at the puck and rob him of it. When in the third period he did go through the entire team and score, the Arena literally rocked with cheers. Added to this must be praise for his gameness. The first overtime period had barely started before he stopped a hard shot with his body and was bowled over. He refused to leave the ice and continued in his position. After five minutes of play the teams changed ends, and they had hardly done so when a wicked shot from Clarke's stick hit Fox in the face and he dropped like a stone. Once more, after being given first aid, he refused to allow a substitute to take his place, and continued in the game until the end, giving everything he had to win. He was in the middle of one of his great rushes when the final gong rang.

Rommerill, who started out as a substitute, was the mainstay of the attack in the three overtime periods. He never let up for an instant, and was everywhere on the ice where the puck was. He broke up rush after rush, and converted them into tries on the Kitchener nets. At that stage of the game Hughie Aird was completely exhausted and Jeffrey had his hands full watching his wing. Therefore the onus of checking the entire Kitchener forward line in mid ice fell on the shoulders of Rommerill. Anyone who is acquainted with the Kitchener team will realize what a contract that is. Yet Rommerill accepted the task and covered himself with glory in the performing of it.

JERRY IN OLD-TIME FORM.

Jerry Laflamme played nearer his old-time form than he has ever done. There was never a minute when he lost his temper, and his coolness in all emergencies had a wonderful steadying effect on the whole team. But that was the smallest part of his night's work. He and Hughie Fox worked together on the defence like a charm.

They shared the burden of the work there, one taking the man and the other the puck. In the third period Jerry moved up to reinforce the forward line and he did some splendid work there. Kitchener found him a most difficult man to handle, his rushes being always dangerous. Only once did he slip, and had he not done so Granites would have won the game. That was in the closing minute of the second overtime period when he had carried the puck through the entire Kitchener team and had only Hainsworth to beat. The goalie came out to check him and Jerry poked at the puck which was slightly ahead of him. In some manner it went high into the air and over the top of an absolutely empty net from the mouth of which he was not more than three feet at the time. However, he made up for that by saving what looked to be two certain goals. In both cases he threw his stick at the man with the puck, who had beaten the defence, and rushing in on Addison. The first time was in the first overtime period, the second with one minute to go in the final overtime period.

WATSON WAS HANDICAPPED.

Harry Watson at centre gave all he had to the game, but his bad knee went back on him early in the game after a hard bump, and his effectiveness was impaired. He was always dangerous, but without his speed his efforts were more or less spasmodic and he was greatly hindered in his back-checking. Aird was the most dangerous shot on the team, and it was seldom the puck left his stick that it did not hit some part of the goalkeeper. In the last two overtime sessions, however, his strength gave out and he was unable to do much more than body his man. He gave Hillman a tough battle all the way through, and that youngster wasn't very effective after the second round. Jeffrey at right stuck to his wing all evening. He needed to, with Clarke as his check. He played a perfect game in every respect and deserves a great deal of credit. After the first period Addison was as steady as a rock and handled many difficult shots without fault. In the second overtime period he made two remarkable saves, both on shots in quick succession by Clarke.

The outstanding men on the Kitchener team were Merrick and Clarke. For the first two periods Merrick stood head and shoulders above everyone else. It was a treat to watch him. His work on the defence was beautiful and single-handed he broke up many dangerous attacks. He was equally as good on the attack as on the defence, and with Clarke he gave the Granites more anxiety than the rest of the team put together. Kitchener's second goal, which was scored by Merrick, after a pretty piece of passing the entire length of the rink with Clarke, was as nice a piece of work as has ever been seen on local ice.

Phil Douglas Arrives at Giant Camp

Absentees Now Reduced to Thirteen

San Antonio, Texas, March 6.—"Shuffling Phil" Douglas, pitcher, is in the Giants' camp, arriving yesterday. He is still a hold-out, but had a conference last night Manager McGraw that seemed to bring him a little closer to a uniform. The number of Giant absentees has now been reduced to thirteen. Of these, Zimmerman and Chase, of course, are not expected.

McGraw has a squad of forty-two players, the second largest which he has yet taken South.

New York, March 6.—Umpire William G. Klem, of the National League, will start to-night on a swing around the senior league training camps for the purpose of instructing the pitchers in the new rules and regulations adopted at the recent meeting of the major leagues in Chicago.

Whitney Has Strongest Candidate in Damask for Kentucky Derby

New York, March 6.—It begins to look as though H. P. Whitney will furnish the favorite for this year's Kentucky Derby. At this early date he appears to have by far the strongest hand, for his candidates are not only rated higher, but they will have an advantage in weight, and one will have a big advantage in the matter of condition.

Condition is always a big factor in deciding the Derby, which is run so early in the season that very often the best horses are not ready for the gruelling test and the race goes to the one that is lucky enough to be further advanced than his rivals. This season condition will cut more figure than usual because of the late winter. Icebound tracks have retarded training operations and have prevented many of the most prominent colts from getting anything more than light exercise under the sheds.

Because of these conditions H. P. Whitney's Damask, which is easily the best three-year-old running at New Orleans, will have a tremendous advantage in the Derby. Although Damask is not rated as highly as several others that carry the light blue and brown, his splendid condition will more than make up for any lack of "class," so that, barring accidents, he will be well supported when he goes to the post for the rich event.

Damask is a son of All Gold—Crinoline II. He was the scrawniest looking of all the Whitney two-year-olds last season, and he was not brought to the races until late in the fall. In his few starts at local tracks he ran very greenly, failing to win a race, but he showed signs of being cut out for a route goer. Of late he has made good by outclassing the mediocre opposition he has met with at New Orleans.

Man o' War will not be prepared for either the Derby or the Preakness, as his owner announced last summer immediately after the champion colt had won the Futurity and retired for the season. Mr. Riddle thinks too highly of the great son of Fair Play to risk having him beaten through lack of training. He was also influenced by the fact that colts are trained for the Derby are inclined to go stale early in summer, when most of the big stakes are decided, as Sir Barton did last year.

BEST COLT ELIGIBLE.

With Man o' War out of it, Mr. Whitney has the next best prospect among the three-year-olds in John P. Grier. This son of Whisk Broom II. was beaten three lengths by Man o' War in the Futurity, but he was five lengths better than the third horse in that race, which brought out the cream of the two-year-olds. He was a late development and was improving with every race, so that it may be that he will yet prove to be the equal of Man o' War. However, it is hardly likely that he will start in the Derby for the same reasons that will keep Man o' War out of that rich but dangerous event.

As neither Damask nor John P. Grier were big winners last season, both will get in rather lightly and will be in receipt of many pounds from colts and fillies that are rated inferior to John P. Grier. The same thing applies to Truly Rural, Wendy, Afternoon, Cobwebs and Arethusa, the fillies that will carry the Whitney silks in the big three-year-old eevnts.

It may be that one of these fillies will be sent to the post along with Damask. Regret, the only filly to win the Derby, carried the Whitney colors, and it may be that Mr. Whitney can repeat with another of the weaker sex.

This season the Derby will be worth close to $50,000, and if it were not for the bad weather interfering with training operations the race probably would bring out one of the largest fields in its history. Last year Billy Kelly and Eternal loomed up strongly at this stage, while none of the others appeared to have a chance to beat them. Billy Kelly partly made good by running second to his stablemate, Sir Barton, but Eternal proved to be a big disappointment, being unable to untrack himself in the race after showing up well in his preliminary work.

Foreign Composers Centre in New York

Berlin, March 5.— A gigantic deal, which gives a group of New York theatrical men the world rights for ten years for all Central European stage and literary productions, and which brings to America some of the world's greatest operetta composers —Oscar Strauss, Lehar, Fall, Gilbert and Kollo as well as the German theatrical wizard, Max Reinhardt, has just been closed here.

The negotiators for the New York group are Ben D. Blumenthal, president of the Export and Import Film Company, New York, and Samuel Rachmann, a German citizen who was active in New York during the war as a theatrical promoter. Blumenthal is about to return to the United States carrying in his pockets contracts which will transplant the home of the operetta from Central Europe—Vienna, Berlin and Budapest—to New York, and which may give the city monopoly control of all German, Austrian and Hungarian music, drama, libretti and literature, with exclusive rights of reproduction for all English-speaking countries.

A list of notable men and women in the Central European theatrical world, headed by Prof. Reinhardt, have been signed up at princely salaries and royalties to go to New York, where they are not only to produce and direct in person their already completed works, but everything they will create within the next decade.

Reinhardt, it is announced, has contracted to produce four plays and three films.

Among the composers signed up to go to New York for direct personal production of their operas are:

Oscar Strauss, of "Chocolate Soldier" and "Waltz Dream" fame; Franz Lenar, king of the Viennese operetta composers, who is known in Vienna as "The Master," and who composed "The Merry Widow," "Alone at Last," "Gypsy Love" and many other works of world-wide fame; Jean Gilbert, composer of "The Girl in the Taxi" and "The Queen of the Movies"

Leo Fall, who composed "The Dollar Princess."

Walter Kollo of "Maytime" fame.

Franz Lehar, it is stated, has contracted to direct personally in New York his new operettas "The Blue Masura," "The Yellow Ticket," and "Frasquita."

Jean Gilbert is to produce his latest work, "The Woman in Ermine," which has been playing to crowded houses here for the last six months.

Leo Fall has contracted to produce his "Rose of Stamboul" in New York.

Several of the composers will take their families with them, apparently intending to make their future homes in the United States.

For two months Messrs. Blumenthal and Rachmann have been negotiating with a large number of composers, libretto writers and publishing houses. The final signatures to the deal were fixed this week.

Acquisition by the United States interests figuring in the deal of the world rights of all writings of German, Austrian and Hungarian artists of note is said to be even more important financially than the operetta transactions.

Beavers Meet Burlington on Monday Night

Exhibition Game to be Played at Arena

The game between Beavers, city league champions, and the Burlington O. H. A. sextette, Monday night at the Arena, is arousing a great deal of comment among the fans who have attended the city league games all season. The West Enders know they will have to have their strongest squad on the ice if they want to give the Burlington champions a hard game. The boys from the lakeside town showed this year that they were a classy aggregation when they won their group and gave a bad trouncing to the Milton team. With the two Cooper brothers, Oakley and Reading in good condition, the Beavers have a fast team which is especially strong on scoring goals. Burlington can bang in the rubber some themselves as can be seen when they scored a dozen goals on Armours, of the Manufacturers' League, on Tuesday night in Burlington.

Only two games will be played, Armours and Gurney-Tilden's going on the ice at 7.30. This should be a struggle from bell to bell as the squads are very evenly matched. This game will break a tie game, played by the teams about a month ago.

FRESH EGGS FOR 75CTS. A DOZEN

Good Array of Vegetables Were Offered.

Bad Roads Results in Small Attendance.

Saturday, March 6. — The recent heavy rains, and the subsequent freezing, have not by any means improved matters, for the farmers desirous of coming to market. The roads in all directions are bad. There was but a small market to-day for a Saturday. The meat supply was particularly small. There was a fair amount of beef and lamb. Of beef, there was none at all, with the exception of a few calves. These were of very excellent quality and sold at 23 and 24 cents per pound. The quotations on other meats remained unchanged.

A great deal of cut-up meat was offered on the outside. Apples, as always, were plentiful. Some celery was to be had, also a few cabbages, and, in addition, a number of the hardier vegetables.

The supply of potatoes was very small. A number of baskets were brought in, but very few by bag.

The dairy hall was quite a busy spot. A great many of these vendors bring in their supplies by train, so it is much easier for them to get their butter, eggs, etc., to the city, than for the farmers with general produce. Eggs sold as high as 85 cents, but some of the very finest could be had for 75 cents.

In the hide market, the one change was in beef hides. They sold at 20 cents, none going below.

U. S. Failures Last Week.

Following the usual tendency, failures during February were fewer in number than those of January, the decrease being 77, and comparison with the relatively moderate business mortality of 1919 still discloses substantial reduction. Thus commercial defaults in the United States last month, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., numbered 492, against 569 in January and 602 in February, last year, while the liabilities of $9,763,142, although $2,500,000 above January's total, show a contraction of $1,700,000 from the $11,489,183 of February, 1919.

In respect of the liabilities, this year's returns reveal decided improvement, the amount being 23.9 per cent. lighter than that of Fesbruary, 1918, more than 41 per cent. under the $18,744,165 of February, 1916, and 69.9 per cent. below the $32,404,630 of February, this year, moreover, it is the best, in point of number, of any February of which there is record, and it is necessary to go back to February, 1899, when about $9,000,000 was reported, to find a lower indebtedness for the period.

NEW YORK MARKETS

(Canadian Press Wire.)

New York, March 6.—(Wall Street, 10.45 a.m.)—Because of the storm and consequent interruption to suburban traffic, the opening of the Stock Exchange session to-day was postponed until 10.30 o'clock. First transactions showed a preponderance of declines, although these were mostly fractional. Mexican Petroleum was the only marked exception, at a loss of 1 1-4 points. This was soon recovered, motor issues and their specialties leading the moderate rally. Trading was very light, and restricted to speculative issues. Exchange on London reacted five cents from yesterday's final price in preliminary quotations.

Bradstreet's Trade Review

Toronto—There is not a great deal of change in local business conditions generally, all lines of trade continuing to move in a satisfactory volume with prices holding firm or advancing. The difficulty at present in a great many branches of commerce is not in finding a market for goods, but in obtaining the raw material to keep industries going. Groceries are very strong and higher quotations on a number of commodities are expected to take place shortly. There is a good demand for leather particularly being in good request. Wholesalers are concerned only about getting travellers have no difficulty getting orders, but that the difficulty is to fill them. Collections are very satisfactory.

Montreal — The general drygoods trade is active, supplies do not meet the requirements of the trade, prices, if anything, being higher. In the grocery trade the chief feature is the sugar situation. Refiners are now operating at full capacity, so that supplies are now more liberally distributed. The retail trade have had an active week. Collections are good.

Hamilton—Collections throughout the surrounding country are good. Retail merchants are meeting their obligations in a very satisfactory way and orders for the coming season are brisk. Hardware has again shown advances in many lines and steel is steadily tending upwards. The scarcity of some lines of raw materials is causing serious trouble to some manufacturers. Groceries are strong in tone with advances in a number of staple commodities. Millinery is moving freely and there is a food demand for the best kinds of goods from country merchants. Industrial concerns on the whole are active and the difficulty in obtaining raw material as noted above is the principal check on brisk trade. Great activity is looked for this summer about the waterfront and those interested are already beginning to prepare for the opening of navigation. Prospects for building are bright.

Ottawa—There is a very brisk demand at wholesale drygoods houses for all kinds of textiles. The grocery markets are strong and prices are moving upward. Collections are good and the whole situation throughout the Ottawa Valley is regarded as sound.

St. John, N. B.—Trade at wholesale houses is good. Considerable industrial expansion is hoped for this season.

London—Trade in Western Ontario is moving along in its usual steady, healthy, prosperous way. Wholesalers say that sorting and fall orders are good and retail trade is brisk. Collections leave little room for complaint.

Vancouver — Collections are very fair.

Calgary—Wholesale trade is in a good condition, as also is the retail end. Caution is still the watchword and the basic situation is regarded as sound. Collections are fair.

Windsor—Collections are good and conditions in the outlying towns are reported as being favorable.

Winnipeg—Encouraging reports as to conditions in the province of Manitoba as a whole, continue to be received. Wholesale and retail trade are satisfactory and a good spring trade is indicated. Collections are fair.

Quebec—Genearl business conditions continue good. Retail trade is active. Manufacturers are busy.

GRAINS SHOWED WEAK UNDERTONE

Late Buyers of Corn Big Sellers Yesterday.

Western Storm Proved No Great Detriment.

(Supplied by Tomenson, Forwood & Co., Merchants Bank Bldg.)

Highest prices on the present upturn were made for all grains at the start with a rush of buying which satisfied buyers and started a setback which result in free realizing sales.

Commission houses which have been heavy buyers of corn of late were among the largest sellers yesterday. Aside from the bigger opening with good local buying, the vigorous support so marked the past few days was not in evidence and the undertone became weaker as prices declined.

The western storm was not as severe as the trade expected and this more than offset the sharp advance in sterling exchange and light receipts.

Cash houses and elevator interests were on the selling side of oats as they have been for some time past, and the market showed a heavy undertone, closing about the low point. —Tribune.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

Ware & Leland—A re-action was overdue and if carried a little further will put the market in a better position.

W. G. Press—May corn ought to be worth as much as cash corn in the country, therefore we regard it as a purchase of breaks.

Bartlett Fraser— We feel that the corn market is entitled to some further setback.

Lowitz & Co.—Still feel friendly towards corn on soft spots. There is nothing in the situation to discourage holders of oats at present.—T & M.

EGGS AND POULTRY

The Situation As On Tuesday, March 2.

Eggs—Last year at this time about enough Canadian eggs were being received at the large centres to meet the consumptive demand. This year the demand far exceeds the supply, and large quantities of United States fresh are being imported in both the East and the West to fill the deficiency. Therefore, the Canadian markets are being almost entirely influenced by the price at which United States eggs can be laid down at the various centres. Those arriving from the States last week at Toronto cost about 53c f.o.b. and 65c delivered. The arrivals from there this week will cost about 63c delivered.

Country track shippers in Ontario report a slight increase in receipts, but are looking for an important increase at any time now. They believe there are considerable quantities being held at interior points owing to the severe weather and bad roads. The prices paid at country points range from 55c to 65c per dozen and f.o.b. sales are being made at 65c to 68c. Prices continue steady in Western Canada, no appreciable increase in receipts having yet been reported.

The balance of the few cars of Westarn eggs that have been on the Toronto market have been cleared. The dead loss on some of these eggs was as high as 13 dozen to the case. Storage eggs are now a thing of the past for this season.

The United States egg markets have fluctuated from day to day according to receipts and demand.

Poultry—The demand for live poultry is in excess of receipts, and the market is firm and higher, particularly for crate fowl. Dealers offered freely 40c delivered for heavy fowl, and sales are reported as high as 48-49c in a jobbing way. Chickens are showing more signs of steadiness, and a large portion now have to be classed as cocks. Other varieties have almost ceased coming forward. Very little dressed poultry is arriving. Western Ontario shippers who sent to Buffalo last week say they received returns which netted them, live fowl 40c, chickens 30c. The premium of exchange was 15 per cent. or about 5c per pound.

Storage poultry is being drawn on freely for hotel, restaurant and railway trade.

The United States poultry markest are steady for dressed and firm for live birds, particularly fowl.

First Guest—I'm sure I don't know why they call this hotel the Palms—do you? I've never seen a palm anywhere near this place. Second Guest—You'll see them before you go. It's a pleasant little surprise the waiters keep for the guests to the last of their stay.—Pearson's Weekly.

You never can tell. Some impecunious suitors are beat on matrimony, others are actually broke.

ENGLISH GOLD TURNS MARKET

Announcement Has Had Most Quietening Effect.

Sentiment Still Clings to the Credit Situation.

(Supplied by J. G. Beaty, & Co., 17 Main street east, Members New York Stock Exchange.)

Weekly Letter.—At this writing the news of gold importation from England lacks official banking confirmation, but the basis of the report seems well founded, and it was enough to turn market sentiment. Most of the advances thus far probably have been due mainly to short covering.

The credit situation will not permit fireworks, but we do think that there is sounder reason for advising purchases of representative stocks on any set backs next week, and that the selling side of the market has ceased to be the side on which the easiest profits can be made. Selling during the past week has been uneven and has been growing less impressive.

Sentiment, of course, will continue to be bound closely with the credit situation. There are still predictions of uncomfortable loan conditions some time during the next two weeks, and this uncertainty may induce profit taking on rallies, rather than the maintenance of a long position.

It is necessary to make, if possible, rather nice discrimination if purchasing the industrials. The steels, oils and probably the equipments look better, in our opinion, than do the motors, leathers and specialized industrials, such as American Woolen. This may be qualified by the fact that there is, or has been, a large short interest in the motors, also that those interested in that class of stocks may be likely to make a demonstration in them this spring.

Under present conditions it is impracticable to do more than guess at how earnings of individual railroads will fare, under the new law. All of the rails are selling at low figures relatively, and all are entitled to a further advance in the general merits of the legislation under which they are to operate.

We do not believe that the so-called high-priced rails are to be sacrificed in favor of the low-priced issues. If roads like Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and New York Central—to mention a few—are to have their present dividend rates safeguarded and, at the same time, are enabled to keep property in sound shape, then their shares are cheap. Incidentally, among the non-dividend payers, St. Paul pfd. look like a good, long pull speculation and to be bought rather than the common. A succession of strong markets for sterling, extending over the entire week culminated yesterday afternoon in a sensational rise which carried the quotation close to $3.60, or more than 40 cents above the low of early February. When it became known that London expects to ship large amounts of gold to this side during the near future, lively bidding carried sterling to a price about 14 cents above Wednesday's close. Further advances in sterling and other leeading exchanges were registered this morning to 3.66, with france and lire bid at 13.70 and 17.85, respectively; marks responded only feebly to the report of an international loan to Germany in order to facilitate her economic recovery. Dutch and other exchange rose in sympathy with sterling.—A. A. Housman & Co.

The photographs show above are those of Mrs. Katherine Smith, Miss Naomi Smith, and Mr. Archibald Smith, late of Lindsay, Ont., all the members of one family, who died from influenza.

The slangy girl was evidently displeased. "You're a lobster!" she cried. Although somewhat taken aback, the tactful youth proved equal to the emergency. "You are just the mayonnaise for me," he retorted. This delicate bit of spontaneous repartee caused her heart to go out to him at once.

Mike Goodman Wins Again at Winnipeg Meet

Canadian Champion Beat American Rivals

Winnipeg, March 5. — Displaying great speed at the necessary moments, Mike Goodman, Winnipeg speed merchant, cleaned up first place in the invitation races at the Arena rink last night before a very poor turnout, in rather easy fashion, scoring 90 points out of a possible 120, getting three firsts, in the quarter, half and mile races. Mike was in great form, taking the lead at the critical moment without much apparent effort, except in the mile, when Steinmetz kept right on his heels throughout the race.

Stowel, of Aurora and Steinmetz, of Chicago tied for second place with 60 points each, while Patrick, of Winnipeg took the remaining 20 points by getting second in the half-mile.

Minneapolis Takes Kitchener Player South on Trial

American Association Club to Give Beaver Player Try-Out

Kitchener, March 5.—Manager Beatty, of the Kitchener Michigan-Ontario team, has just completed a deal whereby "Dick" Wade will go south with the Minneapolis club of the American Association for a tryout. If Wade makes good with Minneapolis and they keep him after May first they will purchase him outright. If he does not catch on he will be returned to Kitchener.

Last year was Wade's first in professional company and he certainly made good. He started the season at second base, but in midseason Beatty shifted him to the outfield.

Softball at Central Y. M. This Evening

Linkerts Meet Pontiac Team of Toronto

The largest crowd that ever witnessed a game of indoor baseball in Hamilton is anticipated when the fast Pontiacs of Toronto clash with the Linkerts, champions Ontario, 1919, at the Central Y.M.C.A. to-day. Two games are scheduled, the first at 4 p.m. and the second at 7.45 p.m.

The Pontiacs, smarting under the 6—4 defeat handed them two weeks ago in Toronto by Linkerts, are coming up determined to reverse the tables, and defeat the champions right in Hamilton, and the fans can rest assured of seeing two good games. Linkerts have the same team with which they won the Ontario championship last year, with the addition of "Eddie" Cummings, and "Nipper" Holmes, and both these men will be used in to-day's games.

Immediately following the second game the Central Y.M.C.A. basketball team meet Broadview Y.M.C.A., and lovers of basketball are looking forward to this great game with great interest, as a win for Hamilton "Y" means the championship.

Altogether, it looks like a big night, and the manner in which the tickets are selling indicates that the gymnasium at the Y.M.C.A. will be taxed to capacity.

Sports of All Sorts

Chicago, March 6.—Norman Ross, representing the Illinois Athletic Association, yesterday cabled the association that he has established a new world's record for one mile in a swimming meet at Sydney, N.S.W. Ross' time was given in the cablegram as 22:58, and the former record, held by Barney Kiernan, an Australian, was given as 23:16.

FRANCE IS ALERT.

Speeds Rebuilding of Merchant Marine.

The task of rehabilitating the French merchant marine has been undertaken in earnest. Already French shipbuilding yards, which were closed down during the war, have 43 cargo boats and two mail passenger liners under construction, while 18 mail steamers, 32 cargo vessels and 17 tugs have been ordered and work on them will commence shortly. Most of these vessels are to be completed in the latter part of this year or early in 1921. All are to be of steel. It is noteworthy also that the average speed of the cargo vessels will be well above 10 knots, compared to a pre-war average for such vessels of about 9 knots, and that the passenger ships will range in speed from 15 to 19 knots an hour.

From this it is apparent that France does not propose to continue indefinitely the dependence on foreign vessels which the war losses forced upon her. The sooner France's merchant marine is restored or brought up to or nearly to its requirements in shipping, the sooner will it be able to cut down substantially the adverse balance in invisible trade through no longer having to pay for the services of foreign-owned ships. In France's present position this is a matter of the greatest importance, and creditors, among whom this country is conspicuous, have occasion to be highly gratified at the energy with which it is being attacked.—From The World's

LABORITES OPPOSED TO NEW CITY BY-LAW

Payment of 100% Local Improvements Unjust, They Say.

WILL PROTEST

Trades Council to Press for Revision of Local Tax System.

A prolonged discussion of civic affairs was featured at the regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council last night. There was a very large attendance. President Harry Bourne was in the chair. Controller Charlie Aitchison, and Sam Lawrence, business agent of the Building Trades, were the ones on the civic debate who discussed the revision of the city tax rates. It was over the report of a special committee on the taxes for local improvements. The controller spoke of the local improvement tax proposals of the city council, whereby local improvements will be taxed on the only basis of eighty-twenty per cent.

Lawrence declared this plan was very unfair, particularly to the workingmen. Heretofore all residential districts and well-to-do sections have been getting all their local improvements on this latter plan, and some of them at sixty-forty and the city has contributed too generously to their building. The sections of the city which will be affected by the new order will be Ward Eight, which is composed of workingmen. And they who need it most, will be taxed the full 100 per cent. It was most unfair in conception and its effect ought to bring a storm of protest, said Lawrence.

Controller Aitchison pointed out that the financial situation in the city was very alarming, which prompted the decision of the council in this matter. At the present rate of increase in civic expenditure, in seven years, the whole civic revenue will be eaten up by uncontrollable expenditure. Such moves as these were the only way out, he said

One delegate suggested the revision of the tax system, as a reply to the last statement of the Controller. He replied in turn that the city fathers were revising the system, but if they turned it inside out they would merely increase the revenue—not reduce the expenditure any.

The committee appointed to co-operate with Loew's stage hands reported that an amicable agreement between the parties had been reached, the men getting practically all they asked for.

H. G. Fester, the secretary, reported for the committee on Lieut. Grindlay's scheme for a change in the physical culture curriculum of the public schools. The committee waited upon the Ontario Government, and Mr. Fester reported that the Minister of Education received the suggestions with marked favor, and promised something to be done in the near future.

The committee which waited on the Nation Union of the Bakers, regarding their affiliation with the International Union, reported that owing to the small attendance, they did not put themselves on record. The matter will be taken up again.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers which recently affiliated with the Trades and Labor Council had two delegates at the meeting last night.

In Ebenezer Tabernacle to-morrow the services will be conducted by Mr. A. P. Gibbon in the morning and Mr. Harry Mills in the evening. All are invited. Hymn books provided.
